DR. C. K. ROBINSON ARRESTED MONDAY AT TORONTO

Much-Sought-For Tamworth Doc Surrendered Himself to the Provincial Police — Charged With the Murder of Blanche Yorke.

DR. ROBINSON GIVES A SIGN STATEMENT.

To the two Toronto Star representatives present at his arrest Dr. C. K. Robinson, of Tamworth, gave the following signed statement:

"I trust the public will not be too harshly of me, by reason of going away and not returning until now, but circumstances over which had no control compelled my absence and the delay in coming forward meet the charges against me."

"I am now prepared to answer, and I hope to refute the charges that have been laid against me."

"If Blanche Yorke could speak, would tell the world that I was innocent of wrong-doing, but upon other man should rest a very heavy burden. I have no desire to conceal truth, and when the time comes me in court to give evidence in behalf, I am certain that I will be to satisfy the court of my innocence."

"There is much behind and included in this case that no one ever thought of that must come out at a full a complete investigation. I am but years of age. I had just started practice. My parents—the best in world—at great self-sacrifice, educated me and looked forward to my career with pride and hope. To cause such suffering and disgrace is the hard cut of all. I can bear all else but that. But I know I shall receive a fair trial to prove my innocence, and recover a redeeming good name I used to bear."

(Signed) C. K. ROBINSON, M.

This statement was witnessed by three brothers, George, William and J. W. Robinson, and by T. C. Robinette, K. C., and the two Star reporters.

Sought by the police of the whole continent of America and of Europe hunted from town to town in his country, Dr. C. K. Robinson, a young practitioner of Tamworth, Ontario, charged with the murder "Happy" Blanche Yorke, on July 1st, gave himself up to Provincial Detective William Greer on the steps of the City Hall, Toronto, just as Labor parade was passing with a blare of bands and flare of banners at 10 o'clock Monday morning.

the battles of the Empire, and to send them such things as the heart of a mother, wife or sister would prompt for loved ones on the fighting line.

In order to reach this end, it is not considered fitting in this time of peril and almost world-wide mourning, that funds should be raised either by dances, card parties, etc., but, that those who can, should make a straight and voluntary gift of whatever they can offer, whether it be time, work, goods, money, or any service or self-sacrifice that will assist the objective in view.

This appeal is made to the thoughtful, intelligent women, who do not consider that the purchase of a flag or cheap theatre ticket, is a suitable offering to a patriotic fund of this description.

We were very pleased to have our headquarters opened on Saturday, the 5th inst., in the large room donated by Mrs. Pratt over her china store, where work was going on, and materials being distributed—and feel that, in the fine response made, we are surrounded by a noble and self-sacrificing band of women.

Those in charge of the room, which will be open every day, from 2 to 5.30 p.m. and on Saturdays from 10 a.m., to 12 and from 2 to 5.30 p.m., will gladly welcome those desirous of working on these lines, or wishing for information.

Secretary, Mrs. Templeton; Treasurer, Miss Heck.

The Committee Red Cross Work, Daughters of the Empire, are very active and work is going on every day. The Headquarters Room is open daily from 2 to 5.30 p.m. On Saturdays from 10 a.m., to 12 and from 8 to 5.30 p.m.

We have pleasure in announcing that the committee for Red Cross Work, Daughters of the Empire, have received many generous donations in money, various articles and other contributions from Morven, Switzerland, Hawley, Adolphustown, Tamworth, etc., from Napanee the material for three dozen Balaclava caps, and the making of the same, also contributions of money, materials and work. Particulars of the foregoing will appear later.

On Wednesday afternoon, the 9th inst., a most successful gathering was held at Headquarters. The large number of ladies eloquently testifying to their sympathy and support of the work being done. It has been decided to serve at 4.30 at the special afternoon weekly meeting a cup of tea and bread and butter sandwich, for which a nominal fee will be charged. Everyone wishing to help this good work will be welcomed. The next special work meeting will be held on Thursday afternoon, the 17th inst.

MORVEN.

A well attended junior meeting of Anglican and Methodist churches was held in the brick church here on Wednesday night. Pursuant to the call of the chief officers of the Protestant Churches of Canada, for intercession with God on behalf of the nation affected by the present terrible war in Europe. The meeting was led by the Rev. James Lovelace. Messrs. Symington and Hooper, Napanee, and Mr. F. J. Lake, Morven, contributed much to the interest and talent of the meeting by addresses suitable to occasion.

young practitioner of Tamworth, Ontario, charged with the murder "Happy" Blanche Yorke, on July 8th, gave himself up to Provost Detective William Greer on the steps of the City Hall, Toronto, just as Labor parade was passing with a blaze of bands and flare of bunting at 10 o'clock Monday morning.

THREE BROTHERS WITH HIM

Pale and governing himself with visible effort, the young, kindly-faced doctor, stood beside the motor car which his three brothers had brought him to the rendezvous, as Detectives Greer and T. C. Robinette, K. Thrasher their way through the swarm of people, stepped up without any more commotion than could be noticed over an invitation to go for a motor ride. Dr. Robinson was put under arrest, cautioned, then driven to the Parliament Buildings where Chief Inspector Joseph Rogers, of the Provincial Police, manded him till Wednesday. He was then driven to the jail, to await Robinette's application to a H Court judge for bail.

TRIAL AT SPRING ASSIZES.

He will be remanded from the to the Assizes at Napanee, on Sept. 22nd, and Mr. Robinette stated that the trial will go over to the Spring Assizes.

CHASED FROM TOWN TO TOWNSHIP.

Dr. Robinson refused to state where he has been. Out of the country, admitted. But whether in the States or not he refused to say. Detective Greer admitted that he had heard of the young doctor's presence in various towns, but from each he fled before action could be taken.

The formal charge against him read at the remand in the Parliament Buildings was murder and illegal operation.

DISAPPEARED JULY 8.

It will be remembered that charge against Dr. Robinson was caused by the disappearance of Blanche Yorke from her home in the village of Tamworth on July 8th and the subsequent finding of her body in the cell of Dr. Robinson's house. Her sudden dropping out of sight caused considerable commotion in the little village sensation over the country.

Dr. Robinson appeared before spectators Rogers at the Parliament Buildings, Toronto, on Wednesday morning. He was accompanied by his four brothers, a brother-in-law, several bondsmen and his counsel, C. Robinette, K. C. Mr. Robinson wished to have the prisoner committed for trial without further examination, so that bail could be applied immediately. Mr. Rogers, after consultation with the Deputy Attorney General decided that this was possible it being strictly against criminal code to commit for trial without taking evidence before magistrate. Dr. Robinson was brought to Napanee, appeared before Police Magistrate Rankin and remanded to gaol.

He will be brought before Police Magistrate Rankin on Friday examination. Witnesses will be present from Tamworth and after formal investigation the prisoner will be committed for trial. An application for bail will then be made.

Every day a big day during the Pri Edward Old Boys' Fair at Picton Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday, Sept. 22nd, 23rd and 24th, magnificient 48th Highlanders of Toronto, in attendance all the days, and will render special programs of patriotic music that make all Canadians present proud that they are sons and daughters of the dear old Motherland. PROLOGUE.

Strength and interest of quiet lives in the New England of three-quarters of a century ago provide the framework of "The Story of Waitstill Baxter." That is the skeleton. The flesh and blood of human beings, living and loving and moving in a world of their own that is a miniature picture of the greater world outside, are also there. The story is a cross section of life as seen and described by a woman who has been well called "America's greatest living woman novelist."

Amid the hills of New England are many men and women like Waitstill and Patience Baxter and their father, Ivory Boynton and his afflicted mother and funny Cephas Cole, who woos hopefully, but with small chance of success. They find their way into books but seldom, for it takes a master hand to describe faithfully the doings of real people. And that is the reason why "The Story of Waitstill Baxter" has won highest praise from critics who know a good book when they see one.

HELP FOR FARMERS.

Mr. G. B. Curran, of the Ontario Department of Agriculture, has received the following letter from the Minister of Agriculture. Any farmer who can place any help is requested to communicate with Mr. Curran, Napanee.

"Please send to the Director of Colonization the names of any farmers in your district who would be willing to give employment for the winter months or longer to men who would be willing to work for the winter months at a small wage including board. As you are aware there is likely to be considerable unemployment in the towns and cities this winter, and the Department is endeavoring to place as many men as possible in this way. Many of these men no doubt have had farm experience. This should prove very acceptable to the men and should also be a good opportunity for the farmers who have been shorthanded for some time to get a lot of much needed work done. I should be glad if you would take up this matter in your district and endeavor to have placed as many as possible."

RAISE MORE FOOD-STUFFS.

The Minister of Agriculture for Ontario, Hon. James Duff, is very anxious that everything possible should be done to encourage an increased production of food stuffs during the coming year. Great Britain is at war and Canada must feed her. The old county of Lennox and Addington, the home of the United Empire Loyalists, will do her share.

Mr. G. B. Curran urges that a special effort be made at once to increase the acreage of fall wheat put in this month. Sow even if late, and if the wheat does not winter well a spring grain can be sown. Pastures not needed should be broken up and sown to grain. Besides wheat, flour and oats, the food most in demand will be meat, cheese, butter, poultry and eggs. Lennox and Addington could double its production of these foods if a special effort were made.

Farmers must not cut down the number of animals they are feeding because of the high prices of feeds. If farmers stop feeding hogs it will be a national calamity. Our soldiers must have food. With the large amount of flour being exported large quantities of bran and shorts should be available for feeding at reasonable prices.

Farmers as a class are most patriotic. Farmers' wives have responded nobly to the call for sewing and knitting for our soldiers. As we all cannot go to the front and fight, let us all work together and raise an abundance of food so that our brave boys in the battle line will at least not suffer hunger.

PATHFINDER DESTROYED.

British Cruiser Is Victim of Mine and About 210 Men Drown.

LONDON, Sept. 8.—It is learned on reliable authority that the captain and fifty of the crew of the British cruiser Pathfinder, which was sunk by a mine in the North Sea, have been saved.

It was officially given out last night, that four men were killed and thirteen wounded, and that 242 men are missing; of the missing about fifty have been picked up.

The destruction of the Pathfinder occurred about four o'clock Saturday afternoon at a point ten miles northeast of St. Abb's Head, Scotland.

While she was patrolling the coast the cruiser struck a mine which exploded near her magazine. Trawlers 10 miles distant felt the shock. From Eyemouth, 14 miles from the scene of the explosion, a huge cloud of smoke was visible on the horizon. A torpedo-boat destroyer was the first to the rescue. She was followed by the St. Abb's motor lifeboat.

The Pathfinder was literally blown to pieces, and the sea was strewn with the wreckage.

The devastating effect of the explosion on the Pathfinder is emphasized in the report of Coxswain Nisbet of the St. Abb's motor lifeboat, which first arrived to give assistance. He says that for a mile and a half the water was strewn with wreckage of every conceivable description.

A message received in London states that in addition to the motor lifeboat several steam drifters hurried to the spot where the Pathfinder sank, and adds that it is learned on reliable authority that the captain of the Pathfinder and some 50 or 60 of his crew were saved.

About ninety of the crew of the Pathfinder, dead and wounded, were picked up by torpedo boats and taken to a hospital at the naval base. Capt. Leake and several other officers were saved. According to an official announcement the casualties among the officers were one killed, nine missing, one seriously wounded and one slightly wounded.

Crown Prince Said To Have Been Midst of Regiments Wiped Out By British Troops—French Victory of the Allies Line Was Also Successful — Germans Forced Retreat.

LONDON, Sept. 8.—A Boulogne despatch to The Evening News says: "A telegram has been received from Gen. Pau, announcing a victory the allied forces under Field Marshals Sir John French, commanding British, and Gen. d'Amade at Per sur-Oise, about 25 miles north of Paris.

"The allies were drawn across northern line with the centre at Picardy. The British troops were on left, and the French on the right. The former had in front of them the Imperial Guard, under Prince Frederick William.

"On both wings, it is reported, allies were successful. The German left was held by the French and tired to the north.

"The Imperial Guard, who were ordered to surrender, were annihilated by the British. It is reported that the crown prince was in the midst."

"The official bureau says: 'General Joffre's plans are being steadily carried out. The allied forces, acting on the offensive, have been successful in checking and forcing back a northeast direction the German forces opposed to them.'

The French War Office has made the following official statement:

"The allies are now engaged in general action on battle lines extending from Nantoull-le-Haudou through Meaux, Szanne and Vitry Francois, extending as far as Vaudun.

"The fighting is very vigorous; the action of our own troops is definitely assisted by the British army."

"The German troops, who had advanced day before yesterday and yesterday as far as the region of Commiers and La Perte Gaucher, the department of Seine-et-Marne last evening were compelled to retreat.

The following official communication was issued last night:

"First, the allies have advanced their left wing without energetic position from the enemy.

"Second, the situation is unchanged in our centre in the centre of Vaudun, our forces alternately advancing and retreating. There have been some partial successes on our right in the Vosges.

"Third, the advancing troops of the allies defending Paris have several combats on the Ourcq river with the results in favor of allies.

"Fourth, the Minister of War telegraphed to the governor of Maubeuge, expressing the Government's admiration for the heroic defense and saying: 'You stop at nothing to prolong resistance until the hour of your approaching deliverance, which I hope will be soon.'

"The commander-in-chief placed the name of the governor of Maubeuge in the order of the day his splendid defence."

The Pathfinder was built for scouting purposes and was very fast. She re-entered the service last October and was reported a short time ago as having engaged a German cruiser.

Mules and War.

Along all the frontiers of the world wherever there is a war there is a demand for the mule. Compared with him the much vaunted war horse is a vanishing figment of the past. His strength, his sureness of foot, his wariness of eye, his ability to endure hardship and hard work on little food and with little care, have made him invaluable as a campaigner, whether in deserts or mountains. The mule has seen the camel and the elephant disappear from armies. He may see the horse vanish. He has seen the motorcycle and the motorcar come in. He may see the aeroplanes numbered by thousands. But it is not likely he will ever see himself superseded in his own line of work. There may be mules without war, but probably never a war without mules.

It was officially announced last night that the Germans are retreating from the line of Nanteuil-le-Haudouin to Verdun after a vigorous attack with French and British troops.

An earlier official statement given out in Paris yesterday said that general action had started on a line from Nanteuil-le-Haudouin to Verdun, a distance of 120 miles. It was then said that thanks to the vigorous action of the French troops supported by the British the Germans had "started retiring." Official advices from Berlin also indicated that a battle of tremendous importance was being fought in the territory described.

Senlis Evacuated.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 8.—The French Embassy announced yesterday that it had received a cablegram from its Government at Bordeaux saying that the French town of Senlis was evacuated by the allies, so that the north and south movement of the German army continues.

The despatch was as follows: "Sept. 5 the north-south movement of the German armies continued. Compiègne and Eportay are the bases of the German army. This army was attacked by us at Sanit Soupple on the right bank of the River Oureq."

"Senlis has been evacuated by On the road from Montmirail to Châlons the second army has sent advanced guard. As for the third and fourth, the heads of their columns are on the road from Châlons and Buray."

"The line of the fifth army reached the road from Trianon moving through the Argonne. The 20th corps was fighting at Gerberle against the sixth German army."

Possibility of a Famine In Austria Is Now Evident, Says Official State- ment—Austrian Despatch Admits Capture of Lemberg and Says Huge Battle Is Now In Progress Near Hrubieszow

PETROGRAD, Sept. 8.—The fol- lowing official announcement was given out yesterday:—

"The Austrian army corps be- tween the River Vistula and the Riv- er Bug are retreating with enormous losses."

"The resistance of the enemy has been broken.

"There are evidences of the possi- bility of a famine in Austria."

The Russian general staff, in an official communication, last night says:—

"In the sphere of operations around Rawawa (32 miles northwest of Lemberg, in Galicia), the Rus- sian forces continue a number of serious engagements. The Austrian army which has been operating in the direction of Kholm is retiring, repulsed by the Russian troops, which have taken numerous prisoners, together with artillery and am- munition trains.

"Five hundred Austrian soldiers are in the hospitals suffering from dysentery, which is said to be ravag- the ranks of the enemy. On the German front there have been only insignificant skirmishes."

Awaiting Aid, Say Austrians.

VIENNA, Sept. 8.—The main Aus- trian army of invasion, commanded by Gens. Moritz von Auffenberg and Dankl, are desperately engaged to- day with an overwhelming Russian force between Hrubieszow, Russian Poland, and the Galician border.

The Russian troops are command- ed by Gen. Ruzsky, who recently forced the Austrians to evacuate Lemberg, and it is stated here that the Russians outnumber the Aus- trians four or five to one. The Aus- trians are heavily entrenched and are fighting on the defence, pending the arrival of reinforcements from Germany.

Gen. Von Auffenberg in his official report admits that his armies are hard pressed.

In Galicia the Austrian forces on the San river have been reinforced and the Germans are bringing up their heavy guns. The centre of the Russian attack is the fortifications at Przenysl, west of Lemberg. The Austrian position there is heavily fortified and new guns have been mounted which command a sweep of the river. These guns proved very effective, and the Russian supply train was completely destroyed.

Surrounding Przenysl.

ROME, Sept. 8.—An official report from Russia says that Russian troops are surrounding Przenysl, a very strongly fortified town in Galicia, fifty miles west of Lemberg. It is known that the town soon will be taken by storm. The fall of Przenysl, it is said, would mean the loss of the last Austrian stronghold in Galicia. It would then clear the way to a Russian forward advance to the junction of their forces in the East Prussian frontier.

Unofficial news which has reached here states that the Austrians still continue their fight southwest of Lemberg.

Army Which Loses In Operations East of Paris Will Be In Desper- ate Straits Says Strategists— Allies and Germans Now In About Equal Strength — Kaiser Believed To Be In The Field.

LONDON, Sept. 8.—News received here from the theatre of war in France shows that more than 4,000,- 000 men are engaged on both sides in that country. Of that number, 2,000,000 are Germans and the rest are with the allies.

The number of British, French and Belgian troops is said to equal that of the invaders.

According to unofficial advices, both flanks of the German army have been turned. The French army under Gen. Joffre, and the forces com- manded by Sir John French, are re- ported as having defeated the Ger- mans.

It is said, however, that both the German and French armies are face to face with absolute disaster because they are in critical positions and that a defeat for either would be fatal. The battle line ex- tends over an irregular line of 120 miles from east to west, and 50 miles from north to south. Fortifying Vienna.

PARIS, Sept. 8.—After the news of the fall of Lemberg became known in Vienna, the correspondent of the Havas Agency says more than 20,000 men were set to work with feverish haste on the fortifications of Vienna, and many thousands of others began fortifying the banks of the Danube.

Dinant Is Burned.

Belgian City Is Destroyed and Many Citizens Are Executed.

LONDON, Sept. 8.—An Ostend despatch to Reuter's Telegram Co. says:—

"The Germans in a few hours, by shell fire and incendiaryism, destroyed Dinant, on the Meuse. Hundreds of male inhabitants were shot, including one party of one hundred prominent citizens, who were executed together in the Place d'Armes.

"The Germans alleged that the civilians had fired shots into Dinant from the heights. While the shooting and burning were going on the women residents of the city were confined in the convents.

"Among those shot were M. Hummers, the wealthy manager of a large weaving factory, and M. Poncelet, son of a former Senator. The latter was killed in the presence of his wife and children. Germans appeared at a branch of the National Bank, where they demanded the cash in the safe. The manager, M. Wasseige, refused to hand it over, whereupon he, together with his two sons, was shot.

To Work Gun Factory.

LONDON, Sept. 8.—A despatch to The Chronicle from Amsterdam says that the Germans are preparing to re-open immediately the gun factories at Cockerill, near Liege. These factories, covering 375 acres, were among the richest prizes captured by the Germans in the war. The whole concern has been taken over by the Prussian War Office, which has offered the Belgian workmen fifty per cent. increase in wages to remain in their places.

face to face with absolute disaster because they are in critical positions and that a defeat for either would be fatal. The battle line extends over an irregular line of 120 miles from east to west, and 50 miles from north to south. The reported defeat of the Germans from Lille is declared to be due to their fear of attack from an army of British and Russian reinforcements believed to have landed at a port on the English Channel.

Reports current in military quarters say a portion of the British expeditionary force is at Maubeuge, a French fortress of first-class in the Department du Nord, assisting the French garrison there in a defence which is being stoutly maintained. Official German reports admit that the fortress still resists.

Military experts agree with French officers that Paris will not be besieged as long as the French and British armies remain active in the field. It is said the possession of the city itself would have a sentimental value. The German general staff is believed to realize that fact and consequently more depends on the battle now raging than on any move since the war began.

In the region from Vitry-le-François to Verdun, the German strength is declared to be enormous. Most of the German forces withdrawn from Alsace-Lorraine are supposed to be attacking the allies round Verdun. The armies of the Crown Prince Frederick Wilhelm, the Duke of Albrecht of Württemberg and the Crown Prince of Bavaria are also included in these positions.

The Kaiser himself, it is reported, has been directing the new movement. He is reported as having joined the army that is directed by his heir. The Emperor's presence on the battlefield there has not been confirmed, however.

The present move of the Germans is supposed to be an attempt to crush the allies, especially the French centre and right, which include 13 or 14 army corps. Students of military science say the operations in the east of France on which the Germans are now engaged, is a critical one, and that it may lay them open to most damaging offensive. The Germans are apparently engaged in a line of considerable magnitude. The general situation favors the allies beginning an offensive movement. The French army on the allies' left and the British army moving forward to co-operate with the French armies to the right of the British. The allies are expected to take advantage of the situation and to force a decisive struggle.

A cablegram from the French legation at Antwerp confirms the previous announcement of the success of the Anglo-French troops in driving the Germans back 15 miles beyond St. Quentin, inflicting terrible losses to the enemy.

The news contained in the French official communication that the Germans had fallen back before the vigorous advance by the allied troops on the line from Nanteuil-le-Haudouin to Verdun indicates that the Anglo-French forces have got on the flank of the German right wing, which passed by Paris on the north and was marching eastward to join with the crown prince's army coming south.

It has been suggested by military experts that Gen. von Kluck's movement to the southeast was taken as a matter of precaution before the movement by the allies from the coast. It is possible it is this new army which has reached Nanteuil-le-Haudouin, thus getting on Gen. von Kluck's flank. The engagement took place Sunday, and that evening the Germans began their retirement.

German Official Statement:

"The German army administration reports that in the west, the allied armies are in retreat between Paris and Verdun, and that the German troops are pursuing them. Paris is empty, and the only scene of animation there is around the railway stations, which are filled with thousands of fugitives. The leading newspapers do not consider that Paris will defend itself to the utmost."

Word received says that train service between Paris and Dieppe has been suspended.

"British cruiser Warrior stranded, probably as a result of fight with cruiser Goeben while escaping from the Bosphorus."

Odors of London.

The sense of smell which enables an engine driver to avoid a collision or a sailor to steer clear of an iceberg is the least cultivated of our senses. But with a properly equipped nose and a little practice we ought to be able to tell where we are blindfold all over London, for every locality has its distinct odor. Soho smells different from Southwark, Billingsgate differs from Limehouse, Rotherhithe has quite a special smell of its own, and Barking is absolutely unique.—R. L. Stevenson.

PROF. SCHLEIMANN'S SON NOW IN THE PUBLIC EYE.

Father of Diplomat Spent Years of His Life Excavating the Site of Ancient Troy and Came Upon Traces of the Long Lost Continent Between Europe and America—Book Is In Prospect.

The recent appointment of Mr. Schliemann to represent the Greek Government at Washington, recalls the dream of his father, Heinrich Schliemann, of uncovering Troy, and the story of his fifty years of preparation for digging up the ancient ruins.

He was the son of a pastor with classic tastes, a grocer's boy at 10, a cabin boy, an underwriter, an indigo merchant. But from earliest childhood the story of the Trojan War had exercised a great influence over the future explorer. Of his earliest childhood he writes:

"My father had often told me with a warm enthusiasm of the tragic fate of Pompeii. He also related to me with admiration the great deeds of the Trojan War and the Homeric heroes, always finding in me a warm defender of the Trojan cause. With great grief I heard from him that Troy had been so completely destroyed that it had disappeared without a trace. My joy may be imagined then, when I received as a Christmas gift a book with an engraving representing Troy in flames, with its huge walls and the Scaean Gate from which Aeneas was escaping with his father."

"I cried out, 'Father, you must surely have been mistaken; if such walls existed they cannot have been completely destroyed; vast ruins of them must still remain, hidden under the dust of ages.' He maintained the contrary, but I was of my opinion and at last we both agreed that I should one day excavate Troy."

"Small wonder that the boy who at eight years had this interest should keep true to the dream of youth. But the story of how he realized that dream half a century later reads more like the chapters of a fatalistic romance than any true biography."

Learning Russian, he was appointed agent of his company at St. Petersburg. Later he embarked in business of his own—the indigo trade. In 1858, at the age of 36, he was able to the world's knowledge of archaic history.

Schliemann died in December, 1890, just before his 68th birthday. Upon fulfilling the conditions prescribed in his will, his grandson, in 1906, received the documents specially prepared by the great archaeologist, and made public enough to let the world know that Doctor Schliemann believed he had discovered a certain clue to the discovery of the fabled Lost Continent, Atlantis. The book, which is to be based on the discoveries, has not yet been published.

There Was a Change.

WHAT IS AMORTIZATION?

The Method of Providing For the Repayment of a Loan.

Every now and then the plain man who has saved a little money and wants to invest it so that he will get a reasonable and safe return runs against a nest of terms which are bewildering and all but meaningless. I'm afraid he usually passes by without taking the trouble to understand them.

Take the word "amortization." I hold that it's no shame to any man not to know what that word means. And yet to investors the word is highly important.

"Amortization" means simply the method of providing for the repayment of a loan. If you lend me $10,000, which I promise to repay in ten years, you have a right to be interested in my plans for meeting the demand for the $10,000 which you expect to make upon me ten years hence.

So I say to you:

"I am going to amortize that $10,000 debt in this way: Out of my earnings every year I'm going to set aside $900. Each year I will set the $900 to work earning something too. At the end of ten years the fund will amount to just enough to discharge my debt."

You will find that specialists in bonds use the word a great deal. They know better than anybody else its importance. They realize that a borrower of money for a long term of years is very apt to forget to make provision for repayment.

Certain lenders of money on long terms insist upon the borrower's tak-

THE REAL RUSSIA.

It is Confined to a Very Small Section of the Vast Empire.

In "The Russian Empire, Today and Yesterday," Nevil O. Winter says:

"In a strict sense, real Russia covers only a portion of the more than 2,000,000 square miles that lie within the borders of the continent. This narrower definition would certainly eliminate Finland, Poland, the Baltic provinces, Bessarabia and the Caucasus and probably a part of the land of the Don Cossacks, the Crimea and the sections bordering on the Arctic ocean and the lower Volga. In other words, the real Russia has developed within this narrower section, and whatever of Russian characteristics appear in the eliminated sections have simply been imposed by the conquerors upon a people alien by birth and language."

"The actual visible influence of Tolstoy on Russia seems not to have been great. He was beloved and revered by many, but no party claims or has ever claimed him as a leader. The higher classes rejected him because of his opposition to all established government; the peasantry were repelled by his diatribes against religion; the revolutionists and anarchists repudiated his teaching because he had no definite plan to offer. His influence on thought and opinion in Russia will not compare with his influence in non-Russian nations."

PHOSPHITE NOT PHOSPHATE.

The Proper Sodium Solution to Use in Bichloride Poisoning.

In a recent issue of a well known medical journal the statement is made that mercuric chloride poisoning can be treated by the use of sodium phosphate with excess of sodium bicarbonate. Thus, editorially, the same journal says: "This solution, it is claimed, instantly converts the bichloride to the mild chloride, which can be removed by a dose of castor oil. It is very necessary that the sodium phosphate shall be chemically pure."

"Attention should therefore again be called to the fact," says the Journal of the American Medical Association, "that the names 'sodium phosphate' and 'sodium phosphite' are so similar that a serious error can be made by the misprinting or misinterpretation of a single letter. Sodium phosphite has been suggested as an antidote to mercuric chloride because it acts as a reducing agent to convert mercuric chloride into calomel—mercurous chloride—while the phosphate is changed to phosphite. Sodium phosphate will have no such action on mercuric chloride because it is already as highly oxidized as possible."

An Eccentric Russian Doctor.

The famous Russian, the late Dr. Zaharin, was noted for his eccentric methods. When summoned to attend Czar Alexander III. in his last illness Dr. Zaharin required the same preparation for his visit to the palace as to any of his patients' houses. That is to say, all dogs had to be kept out of the way, all clocks stopped and every door thrown wide open. He left his furs in the hall, his overcoat in the next room, his galoshes in the third and, continuing, arrived at the bedside in ordinary indoor costume. He sat down after walking every few yards and every eight steps in going upstairs. From the patient's relatives and every one else in the house he re-

KIDNAPING VOTERS.

Once a Regular Feature of Polit Warfare In England.

In England a generation or two kidnaping was a regularly organized feature of political warfare. On eve of an election especially men of influence on either side would mysteriously vanish to reappear later in strange tales of forcible seizures, races across country in post chaises driven by yelling postillions, followed by longer or shorter terms of glib imprisonment in great mansions, while they were wined and dined in sumptuous style and treated right royally in every way, only their liberty being denied them.

Quite humble voters, too, were frequently abducted, but these did not always fare quite so well. Thus one voter made complaint before a magistrate that he had been decoyed from his house by a ruse and kept shut up in coal hole for three days.

Wholesale kidnaping of voters batches, too, was not unknown, process being rendered easier by custom of candidates paying the traveling expenses of their electors to from the polling places.

For instance, at a certain Newcast election a whole shipload of free of the borough, dispatched from the contrary, but I was of my opinion and at last we both agreed that I should one day excavate Troy.

"Small wonder that the boy who at eight years had this interest should keep true to the dream of youth. But the story of how he realized that dream half a century later reads more like the chapters of a fatalistic romance than any true biography.

Learning Russian, he was appointed agent of his company at St. Petersburg. Later he embarked in business of his own—the indigo trade. In 1858, at the age of 36, he was able to retire on his income, and now devoted himself to the study of archaeology for ten years. At that time his fortune had increased to an income of approximately $50,000 a year.

"A trip through the Orient resulted in the writing of his first book, 'Le Chine et le Japon,' and in 1869, after a careful and extensive investigation in Greece, a second volume, entitled 'Ithaca, the Peloponnesus, and Troy.'

In Greece, before the publication of his second book, he had married Sophie Kastromenos, a remarkable Greek woman of strong character, notable scholarly attainments and considerable wealth. She was in hearty sympathy with his aim, and aided him to such an extent that he expressed himself as being gravely in doubt if his work would have ever been as successful without her untiring interest and assistance.

In 1870, at the age of 48, having received permission of the Sultan, through the office of the American Minister, Schliemann's chance came.

Some idea of the barriers presented by the work itself may be gathered from the excavator's story of the proceedings in his greatest book, "Ilios." He says:

"We had to break through a wall ten feet thick consisting of large blocks of marble, most of which were drums of the Corinthian columns, cemented with lime. We then had to piece the wall of Lysimachus, also ten feet thick and built of large hewn stones, and to force our way through two Trojan walls from five to ten feet in thickness.

"While making this excavation we found a number of large earthen jars from three to six feet high, as well as numerous drums of Corinthian columns and other sculptured blocks of marble. All these must have belonged to the Hellenic buildings."

Schliemann found the great edifice he called the Tower of Ilium—a building nearly 40 feet thick. In turn were unearthed the "Scaean Gates" of Homer and the palace of Priam the king.

The contributions made by the Schliemanns to the archaeological knowledge of the life of Greek antiquity, and, in addition, the increased light thrown on the Homeric poems by the material discovered, are almost inestimable. But not content with the work accomplished Doctor Schliemann turned his attention to Greece proper and succeeded in unearthing the ruins of Mycenae and Tiryns.

Here were discovered the remains of the Lion Gate, the royal tombs, and a number of priceless additions to this way. Out of my earnings every year I'm going to set aside $900. Each year I will set the $900 to work earning something too. At the end of ten years the fund will amount to just enough to discharge my debt."

You will find that specialists in bonds use the word a great deal. They know better than anybody else its importance. They realize that a borrower of money for a long term of years is very apt to forget to make provision for repayment.

Certain lenders of money on long terms insist upon the borrower's taking out a life insurance policy big enough to meet the debt in case of death before the debt becomes due. Generally the longer a debt has to run the more important becomes the question of "amortization."—John M. Oskison in Chicago News.

NAVAJOS FEAR THE DEAD.

Hence They Get Rid of Their Bodies as Quickly as Possible.

One practice of the Navajos that promotes health among them, however repugnant it may be for us, is their disposition of the dead. In the presence of the living the Navajo is without fear, but his terror of the dead is abject and unreasoning. The dead are believed to be possessed of malevolent feelings toward the survivors, with unlimited powers for working evil upon those who carelessly place themselves within the power of the spirits.

So when any one dies the only anxiety of the surviving relatives is to get rid of the body as quickly as possible. If there are any white men living in the neighborhood an effort is made to induce them to perform the offices of undertaker. If not, the disposition of the body depends somewhat upon circumstances. If the Hogan—the modern wigwam—is built of wood it is set on fire and burned with the body in it. If of stone the body is usually taken outside, the entrance to the Hogan closed up with stones or sticks and a hole made in the wall opposite to permit the evil spirits to depart and to warn passersby that the structure belongs to the dead.

If the death occurred in a rocky country the body will likely be taken to some crevice and thrown in it. It may be left uncovered to become the prey of wolves and coyotes, or sticks and stones may be cast over it. If the family lives in a sandy part of the reservation, with no convenient crevices or chasms near by, the body will be laid upon the sand, a little earth and some stones thrown upon it, and a pile of brush laid over all.—Christian Herald.

The Judge Who Didn't Joke.

The funny sayings of a judge who never joked are found in "Arabianana," a selection of the dicta of Sergeant William Arabin, who sat as a judge at the Old Bailey in London from 1830 to 1839. For instance, his remark to counsel:

"If you can show precisely at what moment the offense was committed and prove that the prisoner was not there when he did it he could not possibly have done it." And he sagely added as an afterthought, "We cannot divest ourselves of common sense in a court of justice."

Another axiom he delivered himself of has been fathered on many other occupants of the bench:

"If ever there was a case of clearer evidence than this case, this case is that case."

Czar Alexander III. in his last illness Dr. Zahari required the same preparation for his visit to the palace as to any of his patients' houses. That is to say, all dogs had to be kept out of the way, all clocks stopped and every door thrown wide open. He left his fur in the hall, his overcoat in the next room, his galoshes in the third and, continuing, arrived at the bedside in ordinary indoor costume. He sat down after walking every few yards and every eight steps in going upstairs. From the patient's relatives and every one else in the house he required absolute silence until he spoke to them, when his questions had to be answered by "Yes" or "No" and nothing more.

Tail of the Possum.

An old negro was out with a hunter one day. The two found a peculiar track. Following the line of what were plainly footprints was a small, continuous furrow.

"What kind of a track is that, Jim?" asked the puzzled hunter.

"Dat's a possum track, sah!" explained the old negro.

"But how does he make that furrow?"

"He makes dat furrer wid his tail."

"With his tail?"

"Yes, suh. He lets his tail drag."

"Why do you suppose he lets it drag?"

"Ah doan' know, boss. I jes' reckin be doan' pay no 'tention to dat tail. S'pose he thinks it'll come along, anyhow."—Louisville Times.

Couldn't Blame the Pump.

A lumberman having awakened on a Sunday morning in a "dry town" after a big spree of the night before searched his pockets in vain. Being very thirsty, he remembered stumbling over a pump in the alley back of the hotel.

He hastened to the pump and began pumping, but without results, as the pump had not been primed. He slowly backed away and, eyeing the pump, said: "Well, I don't blame you for not working, anyhow. I wouldn't patronize you when I had money."—Exchange.

MARRIAGE FAILURES.

Two Crises In Wedded Life That Mainly Responsible.

That there should be such involvement and so many amazing contradictory theories about the cause of the failure of marriage is surprising.

The plain fact is that marriage is always the end of romance and the ginning of history. This is so that Homer tells us the women of ancient Greece reckoned their ages from the birth date, but from the dying day. A good many husbands this twentieth century are a good more certain about the number of years their wives have lived since marriage than about the summers and winters they had numbered before became wives.

Failure to recognize the difference between romance and history can failure of marriage. Romance is play; history is a serious business Courtship is pie; marriage is potato. The comedown from pie to potato sometimes overstrains matters seriously. But if this crisis is safely past another awaits.

Love is the spice of life, but friendship is the nourishing food with which life, except to unusual individuals, becomes a burden. The marriage which is all spice and no food gives one or frequently both of the parties thereto acute indigestion. When the ecstatic emotions of the honeymoon have fled, marriage must some other subsistence or it can thrive. And the only satisfying is friendship.—Mother's Magazine.

Trivial Causes of Wars.

A bucket was once the innocent cause of a terrible war. Nine centuries ago some soldiers of Modena took a bucket as a joke from a public at Bologna. When they refused to store it scrapping commenced between the soldiers of the rival states and a war ensued, which spread to involved the greater part of Italy. In more recent times a debt of a few shillings of which the besieged Algiers demanded payment through the French consul led to a war which lasted twenty years, cost more than 500,000 lives and made Algiers French possession.

THE TOMB OF TUSITALA.

Samoan Natives Keep Stevenson's Grave Buried in Flowers.

It was in December, 1894, that Stevenson died at Vailima, near Apia, on the Island of Upolu, in the Samoan group. Lovers of this quaint character—the modern who was an ancient, the ancient who was a modern, the contemporary who became a classic because he translated new things into thoughts for all time—will be glad to know that since then he has slept in a distant grave, but not in a neglected one. For the natives of that island keep his tomb on the lonely mountain-side fragrant with flowers. "The tomb of Tusitala," they call it—that was the great Scot's Samoan name.

Stevenson went to live in Samoa in 1887. He was a comparatively young man, but he had seen the vanities of the world, and, captivated by the climate, the scenery, and the kindly character of the natives, he at once determined to live out whatever space of life might remain to him in that fortunate island. And there he did live for seven years. Long ere he died he wrote his own epitaph, and that epitaph is graved on the brass tablet that was put there in 1895:

Under the wide and starry sky
Dig the grave and let me lie.
Glad did I live and gladly die

ECCENTRIC CHESTERTON.

He Doesn't Mind How He Dresses, and His Wife Is His Guardian.

There is one English author at least who admits quite frankly that he is practically dependent on his wife, and that is big G. K. Chesterton. Like most geniuses—and G. K. C. is generally admitted to be one—Chesterton is too much absorbed in the details of his creative work to bother much with mere business and social ones, and how many of his commissions would be executed and how many of his appointments kept if it were not for Mrs. C. goodness only knows. She acts as his "business conscience" and goes with him on almost every journey.

It is on record, however, that once when Chesterton had a journey to make visitors arrived, and Mrs. Chesterton, being called upon to play the part of hostess, was unable to accompany her husband. However, she started him off with the words, "Now, Gilbert, you know where you are to lecture and what your subject is," and Chesterton went to the railway station. Arriving there, he banged down a sovereign at the booking office and said, "A ticket."

"Where for?" asked the astonished clerk.

"Free Trade hall," replied Chesterton.

"Oh, Glasgow, then!" said the clerk, and Gilbert, assenting, received a ticket for that station.

Stepping into the street at Glasgow, he was hailed by a friend: "Hullo, Chesterton! What are you doing here?"

"Oh, I'm lecturing at the Free Trade hall."

"Oh, no; you're not," said the friend.

"Oh, yes; I am," protested Chesterton. "I booked the engagement some months ago."

"But you cannot be," maintained the friend, "for the place is being renovated and the painters are in."

It slowly dawned upon Chesterton that he was at the wrong place, and he, further to justify his claim to greatness, sent a telegram to his wife: "Am here. Where ought I to be?"

Even Mrs. Chesterton, however, apparently cannot always compass the feat of having her rotund husband costumed according to Hoyle. I remember quite vividly a soiree which I once attended at the Chestertons' flat in Overstrand Mansions, Battersea, and even more vividly how G. K. C. was dressed. Part of his costume consisted of trousers and waistcoat of a brown mixture and a dark red tie, and with these he wore—it is almost incredible, yet true—a dinner coat! He was in great form that evening and kept us all well edified and entertained. I don't suppose he had the faintest idea what he had on!—Hayden Church in Philadelphia Ledger.

An Embarrassing Moment.

There are moments when a man would sooner be anywhere than where he is.

Take the case of the young man who was talking with an heiress who can write checks with five figures.

"Which do you consider the most conducive to happiness, Mr. Gigglesworth, money or beauty?" she asked. What could he say?

The heiress is as plain as the law permits heiresses to be.

If the young man said "beauty" the lady would be offended. If he said

BOOKS BOUND IN GOLD.

Costly Volumes Which Have Been Made For Connoisseurs.

One thousand four hundred pounds is the value set upon a magnificent specimen of present-day English bookbinding about to be sent to America. The book is an illuminated manuscript of some of Keats' poems, and has just been completed after two years' work. The poems are written and illuminated on vellum, and illustrated with original water-colors, while the morocco cover is elaborately gold-tooled, inlaid with over 4,400 pieces of colored leather, and set with over 1,000 precious stones.

This book was designed and bound by Mr. George Sutcliffe, the noted bookbinder of Poland street, London, who has evolved many original ideas in bookbinding. He was the first to use jewelled decorations of pearls instead of white leather, garnets instead of red leather, and so on. That such work pays is evident from the fact that Mr. Sutcliffe now employs eighty men.

The illuminated manuscript of Keats referred to is the most elaborate specimen of binding executed by Mr. Sutcliffe since he designed a jewelled Omar Khayyam, which was purchased by the German Government for the Frankfort Museum twelve years ago, and in the decora-

This is so true that Homer tells us the women of ancient Greece reckoned their ages not from the birth date, but from the wedding day. A good many husbands in his twentieth century are a good deal more certain about the number of years their wives have lived since marriage than about the summers and winters they had numbered before they became wives.

Failure to recognize the difference between romance and history causes ailment of marriage. Romance is all day; history is a serious business. Courtship is pie; marriage is potatoes. The comedown from pie to potatoes sometimes overstrains matters seriously. But if this crisis is safely passed another awaits.

Love is the spice of life, but friendship is the nourishing food without which life, except to unusual individuals, becomes a burden. The marriage which is all spice and no food soon gives one or frequently both of the parties thereto acute indigestion. Then the ecstatic emotions of the honeymoon have fled, marriage must find some other subsistence or it cannot drive. And the only satisfying food is friendship.—Mother's Magazine.

Trivial Causes of Wars.

A bucket was once the innocent cause of a terrible war. Nine centuries ago some soldiers of Modena stole a bucket as a joke from a public well at Bologna. When they refused to restore it skirmishing commenced between the soldiers of the rival states, and a war ensued, which spread until it involved the greater part of Europe. In more recent times a debt of few shillings of which the bey of Algiers demanded payment through the French consul led to a war which lasted twenty years, cost more than 30,000 lives and made Algeria a French possession.

He was a comparatively young man, but he had seen the vanities of the world, and, captivated by the climate, the scenery, and the kindly character of the natives, he at once determined to live out whatever space of life might remain to him in that fortunate island. And there he did live for seven years. Long ere he died he wrote his own epitaph, and that epitaph is graven on the brass tablet that was put there in 1895:

Under the wide and starry sky
Dig the grave and let me lie.
Glad did I live and gladly die
And laid me down with a will.
This be the verse that you grave for me:
"Here he lies where he longed to be,
Home is the sailor, home from the sea,
And the hunter home from the hill."

He Hits Back.

There had been a domestic spat at breakfast.

"You monster!" snapped the matron, who was always scolding. "You are not like my two former husbands. They were tender men."

"I never doubted that they were tender, Maria," ventured the meek man, "when you kept them in hot water all the time." And he just cleared the front porch two yards ahead of the rolling pin that followed him.

Fatal Disease.

A young painter who had just finished a picture insisted upon a friend calling to see it.

"There, now," enthused the artist, "you see my new picture! What's the matter with that?"

"I don't know," replied the bored friend, "but I should say it was a case of art failure."

The "Need Not Tell You" Man.

"I need not tell you," says the philosopher of folly, "that when an orator starts with the words, 'I need not tell you' he goes right ahead and tells you all that he need not tell you."

No Pantermine.

Kiddie—Did you go to the pantermine this time, A'n't Jane?

Widow—Lawks a me, child, no, indeed! I 'arn't seen no pantermine since yer old Uncle Bill fell downstairs and broke 'is neck.

Good That He Returned.

"Boy, watch my horse till I come back!" called a man to a boy lounging around the station, as he hastened to bid farewell to a departing friend.

"Sure!" said the boy, taking the reins.

Just then the locomotive whistled and the horse, rearing suddenly, started at full speed up the road.

The boy stared after the fleeing animal, and, as the owner appeared, exclaimed with relief:

"It's a good thing you came now, sir, for I couldn't have watched him much longer."—Ladies' Home Journal.

Jolting Him.

Bashful Youth—Miss Bella, does your mother object to my coming here so much? Fair Charmer—Oh, I think not. I heard her telling papa the other evening that you merely came to pass away the time; you didn't mean anything serious.—London Tit-Bits.

an embarrassing moment. There are moments when a man would sooner be anywhere than where he is.

Take the case of the young man who was talking with an heiress who can write checks with five figures.

"Which do you consider the most conducive to happiness, Mr. Gigglesworth, money or beauty?" she asked.

What could he say?

The heiress is as plain as the law permits heiresses to be.

If the young man said "beauty" the lady would be offended. If he said "money" she might consider it a proposal.

Then he rallied.

"Having neither," he said, "I'd rather not be quoted."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

He Saw the Joke.

A hearty laugh had gone almost around over the story of the fisherman who, to locate the place on the lake where he had good luck, cut a nick in the side of his boat. "Almost around," for the Englishman sat solemn and silent. About five minutes later, however, he awoke with a roar of laughter, and when asked the trouble, replied: "Well, wouldn't it be a corking good joke if that fisherman got a different boat the next time he went out?"

Deep Breathing.

"Learn to sit or stand erect and breathe deeply," says a health expert. "Remember that your blood cannot be properly washed with half a lungful of air any more than you can take a proper bath in a few pints of water." Everybody must know what a joy there is in the deep breathing of the pure air of the morning. The lungs respond to the stimulus much as the body reacts from a dash of cold water.—Columbus Dispatch.

Driven to It.

"Can you make me a bureau with a secret drawer?"

"Yep. Place to hide a will, eh?"

"No; I just want to have a place where I can keep a few clothes. My wife's things occupy all the visible space."

Pleasant.

Child Visitor—Mrs. Jones, please can I go upstairs in your room and look in your closet? Hostess—Why, Willie, what do you want in my closet? Child Visitor—I want to see the skeleton pa says you've got there.—Baltimore American.

The Only Difficulty.

"The world owes me a living."

"That's all right, old man, as long as you can get somebody to stake you while you are trying to collect the bill."—Boston Herald.

If you will not bear Reason she will surely rap your knuckles.—Franklin.

London, who has evolved many original ideas in bookbinding. He was the first to use jewelled decorations—pearls instead of white leather, garnets instead of red leather, and so on. That such work pays is evident from the fact that Mr. Sutcliffe now employs eighty men.

The illuminated manuscript of Keats referred to is the most elaborate specimen of binding executed by Mr. Sutcliffe since he designed a jewelled Omar Khayyam, which was purchased by the German Government for the Frankfort Museum twelve years ago, and in the decoration of which twenty-one opals were used. Another specimen of Mr. Sutcliffe's art is a sumptuously-bound copy of Shelley's works, each flower in the hawthorn decoration being set with a pearl.

Volumes in modern binding which sell for $1,000 to $2,500 each are by no means uncommon. Not long ago, for instance, a set of Dickens was published, the price per volume being $1,000, each book being bound in vellum and enclosed in a casket of white silk and leather.

It was a marvellous production, but scarcely so interesting as the Hon. Walter Rothschild's book on "Extinct Birds," which represented many years of labor and cost its author something like $100,000 to produce. Mr. Rothschild stipulated that the book should be turned out in imperishable form, as it was improbable that the subject would ever be done again and he wished the work to endure for all time. Only 300 copies were printed in English for private circulation, the price of each copy being $125.

Strange Modern Building.

One of the most extraordinary buildings erected in modern times is now being built near Dornach, in Alsace. It is called the Temple of the Science of the Spirit and will be the mecca for every student of occultism and mysticism in Europe. The temple should be completed by December, when formal opening ceremonies of great pomp are to be performed.

It owes its inception and construction to Dr. Rudolf Steiner, a German theosophist, who has at least 4,000 followers. The cost of the building, which is of huge proportions, will be $600,000, which has been raised by subscriptions from spiritualists in many lands.

Symbolism and mysticism are the keynotes of the architectural design, for the greater of the two domes which surmount the building is said to represent the universe, and—since the numeral 7 represents the unrolling of things in time—it is supported on each side by seven great columns. These pillars are in the form of a pentagram and support ornate capitals representing the planets of sun, moon, Saturn, Jupiter, Mars, Mercury, and Venus. Each column is made symbolically of a different kind of wood, for the whole edifice is built of wood except the basements, which are of stone, constructed in the form of terraces.

Curious Jellyfish.

A retired mariner says he saw many strange inhabitants of the sea when he was going about the world in a square rigger, but a sight which impressed him most was the peculiar form of a jellyfish. It was about eight inches long and shaped precisely like a horse, having a long, flowing mane, fetlocks and the various other appendages.

What sailors call "Portuguese men of war" are jellyfish shaped like a boat. Each carries large sail, resembling glass, which bellies out with the wind and causes the fish to cut through the water at a surprising speed. The "Portuguese men of war" are numerous in the Indian ocean,

N. C. I. NOTES.

A meeting of the pupils of the N.C.I. was held in Form A. L., Wednesday afternoon, Sept. 9th, for the purpose of organizing an Athletic Society. Despite the gloomy prediction of the pessimists that there would be no football at the N. C. I. this year, a goodly number of pupils attended the meeting. If the enthusiasm shown at the meeting is any indication of athletic progress, the N.C.I. will have a team that will keep up the grand record of our school.

Let us remind the girls that the Athletic Society is a society for the pupils, not merely for the boys. We would suggest that they turn out in large numbers next meeting. Some of the boys might take this hint.

The success of the school in Athletics depends upon not only the team, but also upon the "rooters," so let everyone do their best. If you can't make the first team try for the second, if you can't make the second you can carry water for the teams. If there is an excess of water carriers get out and "pull" for the team. Do all you can.

FINANCIAL DISTRICT MEETING.

The financial district meeting of the Napanee District of the Methodist church, was held in Trinity Methodist church Sunday School rooms, on Tuesday, Sept. 8th, at 1 p.m., Rev. S. Sellery, M.A., B.D., chairman of the district, presiding.

The response of the roll call showed a good attendance of members.

The circumstances and needs of the several mission fields were looked into and the necessary amounts from the mission fund were recommended.

It was agreed that Sunday School Institutes, under the management of the District Sunday School Secretary, Rev. S. T. Tucker, B.A., B.D., should be held during the full moon, 1 Oct. and Nov. at the following churches, viz.—Grace (Napanee) Roblin, Wilton, Bethany (Bay) and Newburgh.

The chairman was empowered to nominate two ministers and two laymen to act with himself to arrange for a district laymen's convention to consider the various phases of church work and devise means for the advancement of the cause of God on the District. The following were appointed: Revs. S. T. Tucker, B.A., B.D., and E. Farnsworth, Bros. E. J. Sexsmith and Geo. Gibbard.

ALLIES GAIN ALL ALONG THE LINE; GERMAN FORCES DRIVEN BACK.

London, Sept. 8th, 11:54 p.m.—British Official Press Bureau issued the following announcement to-night:

"The general position continues satisfactory. The Allies are gaining ground on their left all along the line of the Ourcq and Petit M. Rivers. The British have driven enemy back ten miles."

"Fighting has been in progress farther to the right along the line which includes Montmirail and S. puis, neither side gaining advantage."

"Farther to the right again, at Vitry-le-Francois to Sermaise-les-Bains the enemy has been pressed back in the direction of Rheims."

"At Luneville an attempt by Germans to advance has been repelled."

BRITISH ENGAGED ALL DAY

"Pressure against the enemy continues all along the allied front. The British force has been engaged every day, but the enemy opposed to after stubborn resistance, retired, is now crossing to the north of Marne."

"The fifth French army has advanced with equal success and repelled many captures."

"The sixth French army, on Ourcq, has been heavily engaged, here also the enemy has been driven back."

"The German army has suffered severely along the whole line, the vanguard having been resolutely pushed home."

"The British force has again sustained some casualties, but the number is small in relation to the nature of the fighting."

"The result of the two days' operations up to the present is very satisfactory."

GERMANS MAKE VIOLENT ATTACKS.

Paris, Sept. 8, 11:55 p.m.—An official communication issued to-night by the French War Office says:

"The left wing of the German forces in their movement of retreat, having crossed the Petit Morin River with a view to protecting their communications, have made violent and unsuccessful attacks against that part of our forces occupying the right bank of the river Ourcq."

"Our British Allies are continuing their offensive tactics in the direction of the Marne on the heights to the north of Sezanne."

"Our troops are progressing favourably, though laboriously."

"On our right wing the situation is good before Nancy and in the Vosges."

"A severe engagement has been fought in the centre, with alternate advancing and falling back."

EXTENT OF THE FIGHTING.

The following official communiqué bearing on the fighting now in progress to the east of the capital, was made public in Paris earlier in evening:

"The left wing of the allied army comprising certain portions of forces now defending Paris, continues to make progress against enemy."

"The French advance reaches the banks of the River Ourcq in the Montmirail region. (Montmirail is about 48 miles east of Paris.)

"The enemy is retreating in the direction of the River Marne, between Meaux (20 miles east of Paris) and Sezanne (42 miles east from Meaux). The French and British armies have taken numerous prisoners, including a battalion of infantry and a company serving a detachment of rapidshould be held during the full moon, 1 Oct. and Nov. at the following churches, viz.—Grace (Napanee) Roblin, Wilton, Bethany (Bay) and Newburgh.

The chairman was empowered to nominate two ministers and two laymen to act with himself to arrange for a district laymen's convention to consider the various phases of church work and devise means for the advancement of the cause of God on the District. The following were appointed: Revs. S. T. Tucker, B.A., B.D., and E. Farnsworth, Bros. E. J. Sexsmith and Geo. Gibbard.

A resolution was passed decreeing that in case of a visit to the circuits of the district by representatives of the Dominion Alliance, fifty per cent of all money raised should be retained by the pastor in charge for the Temperance and Moral Reform work of our church.

The following resolution re the war was moved by Rev. Stillman, Kemp seconded by Rev. Anthony Hill, and unanimously carried.

"We, the members of the Napanee District, would like to give expression to our feelings touching the war now in progress. We believe that it is with the Allies a holy war standing for the principles of liberty, justice and democracy. We believe that we, as Canadians, ought to render every possible assistance to the Mother Country in the struggle. We rejoice in the hearty response in securing volunteers for the Canadian contingent for overseas service, for the liberal help given by Canada to the Motherland in supplying for the troops. We would urge that the patriotic fund meet with a liberal response. The least we can do is to help our brave soldiers and their families by furnishing them with all temporary necessities. We strongly urge that Wednesday, Sept. 9th, be set apart as a day for national intercession and we hope that ere long peace may again prevail throughout the world and that this may be a lasting peace."

The pleasant courtesies and tactful demeanour of the chairman has won the hearts of the members of the district, lay and clerical. In the despatch of business he has shown himself an efficient presiding officer, and the brethren look forward to a year of pleasant and progressive work for the Master. It is hoped that the officers and members of the churches will heartily co-operate with the pastors in an endeavour to make the year one of splendid attainment in every department of church work.

Good old Prince Edward, our neighboring county, now enjoys the proud distinction of owning the Model County Fair Grounds of the Dominion, and its buildings and lands which are situated in Picton, exceed in value those of any other Agricultural Society in the Province. The buildings added and improvements made this year, consist of a splendid new cattle barn 50 x 200, erected at a cost of $4,000. Twenty-nine roomy horse stalls. Fifteen new pig pens, all roofed and nicely painted. Bleachers built next the grand stand that will seat 300 people. Five hundred feet of picket fence has been added to that which enclosed the race track. 400 extra chairs have been placed in grand stand. A very handsome band stand which originally cost $250,000, has been moved on the grounds. And last but not least the Prince Edward Old Boys have erected an Old Boys' Rest Pavilion on the grounds, which with its comfortable rooms and broad verandah facing the track, will certainly prove a haven of comfort and rest to women and children who visit the fair.

the left wing of the allied army comprising certain portions of forces now defending Paris, continues to make progress against enemy.

The French advance reaches the banks of the River Ourcq in the Montmirail region. (Montmirail is about 48 miles east of Paris.)

"The enemy is retiring in the direction of the River Marne, between Meaux (20 miles east of Paris) and Sezanne (42 miles east from Meaux). The French and British armies have taken numerous prisoners, including a battalion of infantry and a company serving a detachment of rapid-guns. They captured also many carriages."

SOME VIOLENT ENCOUNTERS

"There have been violent encounters with the enemy on the centre, between Fere-Champenoise (12 miles east of Sezanne) and Vitry-le-Francois, southern point of the forest of Fontainebleau. (Vitry-le-Francois is 27 miles east of Fere-Champenoise.)

"At no place have we fallen back the enemy has lost ground."

"The reported retiring of the enemy near Vitry-le-Francois has been confirmed."

ALLIES TAKE 30,000 GERMAN PRISONERS.

Paris, Sept. 8.—Accounts of wounded soldiers who reached Paris afternoons indicate that the result of the three days' fighting in the Champagne country has been more favorable for the allies than at first supposed. They say the German losses in killed were enormous, and that great number of prisoners were taken. One French officer estimates prisoners at 30,000.

BRITISH ONSLAUGHT WAS IRRESISTIBLE.

Paris, Sept. 8.—The British and French have taken the offensive against the Germans to the east northeast of Paris, and there is great jubilation here, for the news of latest turn of military events has come generally known among population of the capital. The onward movement of the allied army so far has been remarkably successful, and the Germans have been easily in full retreat to escape disaster.

DRIVING THE AUSTRIANS IN RUSSIAN POLAND.

Petrograd, Sept. 8.—The Russian forces are making satisfactory progress along the Austrian front, where there have been serious engagements according to the Russian official statement, which says:

"In the Rawa region, the Russian Commander, General Ruzsky, fought a fierce battle against strong Austrian forces. The Russian troops delivered an attack against very strongly fortified Austrian positions near Gorodok.

"On the left bank of the Vistula, the offensive movements of the Russians have proved favorable to them."

SIGNS OF GENERAL RETREAT

London, Sept. 8.—A despatch from The Evening News from Petrograd says the Russian newspapers publish a report from a highly authoritative source to the effect that there are signs of a general retreat of Austrians on their whole front between the rivers Bug and Uistula.

The fortresses of Przemysl, Jaroslau, on the river San, and Czestochowa, on the Vistula River, are only obstacles the Austrians have to prevent the Russian advance.

ALLIES TAKE 30,000 GERMAN PRISONERS.

Paris, Sept. 8.—Accounts of wounded soldiers who reached Paris this afternoon indicate that the result of three days' fighting in the Champagne country has been more favorable for the allies than at first supposed. They say the German losses killed were enormous, and that a number of prisoners were taken. One French officer estimates the soners at 30,000.

ITISH ONSLAUGHT WAS IRRESISTIBLE.

Paris, Sept. 8.—The British and French have taken the offensive against the Germans to the east and northeast of Paris, and there is great jubilation here, for the news of the latest turn of military events has been generally known among the population of the capital. The forward movement of the allied armies far has been remarkably successful, and the Germans have been loyally in full retreat to escape disaster.

DRIVING THE AUSTRIANS IN RUSSIAN POLAND.

Petrograd, Sept. 8.—The Russian forces are making satisfactory progress along the Austrian front, where there have been serious engagements, according to the Russian official statement, which says:

In the Rawka region, the Russian commander, General Ruzsky, has fought a fierce battle against strong Austrian forces. The Russian troops delivered an attack against a strongly fortified Austrian position near Gorodok.

On the left bank of the Vistula offensive movements of the Russians have proved favorable to their cause."

IGNS OF GENERAL RETREAT

London, Sept. 8.—A despatch to the Evening News from Petrograd says the Russian newspapers publish report from a highly authoritative source to the effect that there is a general retreat of the Austrians on their whole front between the rivers Bug and Vistula. The fortresses of Przemysl and Lwow, on the river San, and Cracow, on the Vistula River, are the obstacles the Austrians now face to prevent the Russian advance.

hey Seem to Digest Their Food Before Absorbing It.

Every gardener knows that a tree can be fed and made to grow with increased vigor. If proper nourishment in the form of humus, nitrogen, phosphate, etc., be placed about its roots the tree will absorb this food and grow rapidly and strongly.

But how the tree feeds is somewhat more difficult to explain. In all probability the tree digests its food first and consumes it afterward. Certain it is that the average tree has no means of consuming food as a whole, as members of the animal kingdom absorb it. It is well known that the larvae of certain insects digest their food first and consume it afterward. Observation would indicate that this is exactly what the tree does. The tiny rootlets act on the substances in the earth, dissolving and breaking them up so they can be absorbed through the root pores. In order so to be taken up the chemicals must be in liquid form and devoid of all waste.

The end of each root is armed with a horny substance, with which it can burrow through the hard soil in search of food. When food is found it is dissolved into a liquid and absorbed by the root fibers. From the root the food is carried by the sap to all parts of the tree.—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

At the regular meeting of Union Lodge, No. 9, A.F. & A.M., G.R.C., held on Friday evening, Sept. 4th, 1914, the following resolution, which was moved by R. W. Bro. W. S. Herrington, and seconded by Bro. W. E. Kidd, was unanimously adopted:

"Resolved, that this Lodge deplores the outbreak of the cruel and devastating war in which our country is plunged, and our earnest prayer and hope is, that victory with honour will attend the efforts of the British and their allies, and that the general outcome of the bloody struggle will be a lasting peace."

"Be it further resolved that we as Freemasons and individual citizens pledge ourselves to use every worthy effort within our power to relieve any distresses that may follow as a result of this war."

ROBINSON GIVES UP.

Doctor Charged With Murder of Blanche Yorke Now In Custody.

TORONTO, Sept. 8.—Dr. Clifford K. Robinson, charged with the murder of Miss Happy Yorke, of Tamworth, surrendered himself to Provincial Detective Greer yesterday morning at 10 o'clock. The officer and the much-wanted doctor met by appointment on the steps of the city hall. During the time between his disappearance on or about July 18 Dr. Robinson has been in Ontario. Until seven or eight days ago he was at Kingston; then he came to Toronto and stayed at his brother's home. Detective Greer was put in charge of the Tamworth case when the body was found in the doctor's house. Within a few days ago he suspected Dr. Robinson was with relatives in and near Kingston and through friends of the doctor began negotiations for his surrender voluntary yesterday.

In giving himself up Dr. Robinson said he wanted to be relieved of the nerve-straining suspense to come forward voluntary was a relief. In a signed statement he avowed his innocence. In part he stated:

"If Blanche Yorke could speak she would tell the world that I was innocent of wrong-doing, but upon another man should rest a very heavy burden. I have no desire to conceal the truth, and when the time comes for me in court to give evidence in my behalf, I am certain that I will be able to satisfy the court of my innocence."

T. C. Robinette, K.C., has been retained to defend Dr. Robinson, whose trial will likely be set for the fall assizes at Napanee, Sept. 22. A remand will probably be made until the spring sitting. The provincial authorities have their case ready now. "We have a good case against him," said Detective Greer.

Since the time of the crime Dr. Robinson has undergone a change. He is frail and pale-looking. His three brothers, John W., William and George accompanied him yesterday.

CATTLE MARKETS

UNION STOCK YARDS.

TORONTO, Sept. 7.—Receipts of live stock at the Union Yards were 140 cars, comprising 2249 cattle 1936 hogs, 851 sheep and lambs and 936 calves.

Butchers' Cattle.

Choice heavy steers by the load sold at $8.60 to $9; loads of good, $8.25 to $8.50; medium to good, $7.75 to $8.15; medium, $7.50 to $7.75; common to medium, $7.25 to $7.50; inferior heifers, $6.50 to $7; choice cows, $6.75 to $7; good cows, $6.25 to $6.50; medium cows, $5.75 to $6; common cows, $3 to $4.50; choice bulls, $6.75 to $7.50; common bulls, $5 to $6.25.

Stockers and Feeders.

Choice steers, 800 to 900 lbs., are selling at $7.50 to $7.75; good steers, 600 to 700 lbs., at $6.75 to $7.25; stockers, $5.50 to $6.50.

Milkers and Springers.

A few milkers and springers were offered. Prices for them were unchanged at from $50 to $90 each, the bulk going at $65 to $75.

Veal Calves.

Receipts moderate and values practically unchanged. Choice veal calves, $10 to $10.50; good, $8.50 to $9.50; medium, $7.50 to $8.50; common, $6.50 to $7.50; inferior at $5.50 to $6.50.

Sheep and Lambs.

Sheep, ewes, sold at $5.50 to $6.25; yearlings, $6.50 to $7; heavy ewes and rams, $4 to $5; lambs, $3 to $8.25, with a few choice at $8.50, the bulk going at $8.25; culs, $6.50 to $7.50.

Hogs.

There were 1936 hogs reported, but out of these there were 1200 shipped direct to the Swift Canadian Company from the northwest. Prices were lower, and should there be many more come from the northwest provinces prices will likely go lower still. Selects, fed and watered, sold at $9.75, and $9.40 f.o.b. cars, and $10 weighed off cars.

MONTREAL LIVE STOCK.

MONTREAL, Sept. 7.—At the Montreal Stock Yards west end market a weaker feeling prevailed, and prices were fully 25c per 100 pounds lower than last Monday for butchers' stock, which was attributed to the increased offerings and the somewhat limited demand, as packers in most cases had carried over fair supplies of dressed beef from last week. Trade was rather slow, even at the lower range, and demand was principally for good to choice steers, of which a few loads changed hands at $8.50 to $8.75, and the good stock at $8 to $8.25. Some choice butchers' cows went at $7.25 to $7.50 per 100 pounds. There was also a weaker feeling in the market for canning stock, and prices declined 10c to 25c per 100 pounds. Demand was not so keen, but a fair trade was done at $5.50 to $5.75 for bulls, and cows at $3.75 to $4.25 per 100 pounds.

The market for hogs was unchanged from last week. The prospects are that values will remain firm, owing to the fact that there is a good export trade now doing in Canadian bacon at profitable prices.

The tone of the market for sheep and lambs was easy, but there was no further change to note in prices. Offerings were large, but the demand was only fair.

Butchers' cattle, choice, $8.50 to $8.75; do., medium, $8.75 to $9.25; do., common, $5.50 to $6; cannery, $4.75 to $5.50; butchers' cattle, choice cows, $7.25 to $7.50; do., medium, $6.25 to $6.50; do., bulls, $5.75 to $7.50; milkers, choice, each, $8 to $8.50; do., common and medium, each, $7.20 to $7.50; springers, $5.50 to $6.50.

Hogs, off cars, $10.40.

Calves, $5 to $20.

"THE SIGN OF THE SON OF MAN IN HEAVEN"

"Then All the Tribes of the Earth Shall Mourn."

The Character of the Sign—Its Effect Upon the Whole World — We Mourn, If Messiah's King Brings Blessings — The Day Troubles the Plowshare To Prepare the Hearts of Mankind.

PASTOR RUSSELL

August 23
The beauty and instructiveness of the Biblical Drama of Creation are more and more appreciated by the public as time passes. The wonderful combination of Biblical illustrations completely outlines the stories and lays a good foundation for intelligent Bible study.

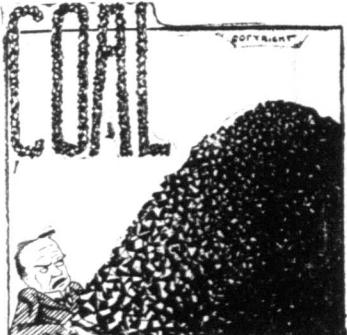

Pastor Russell's topic to-day from the text, "Then shall appear the sign of the Son of Man in heaven, and then shall the tribes of the earth mourn, and they shall see the Son of Man coming in the clouds of heaven with power and great glory."—Matthew 24:30.

The speaker pointed out various suggestions made by scholars respecting the import of this prophecy some guessing that the sign would be a cross in the sky; others, that it would be Christ Himself, appearing in some wrathful form to human causing dismay; etc. He surmised that his audience had read public reports of his recent sermon respecting Christ's Second Coming in its phases—the Parousia, or invisible presence, followed by the Epiphany or bright-shining in flaming fire, judgment. He could not say that the sign of the Son of Man would be Parousia; for Christ's Parousia must be known except to the saints of His Church. Consequently it must stand related to His Epiphany, or shining forth in judgments, which the whole world recognizes.

The bearers were reminded that the sign is merely an indication; for instance, a crepe is a sign of mourning, the cross represents Christianity, the crescent Mohammedanism. So the sign of the Son of Man in heaven would properly be some indication that He has taken His great power and begun to reign. Since He is to be revealed in flaming fire, taking vengeance, this sign must be some indication of righteous indignation against wrong.

Mourning Because of Him.

To the question, How could such a sign appear in the sky, the reverend Pastor replied that this is not thought. He reminded his audience that the Bible repeatedly uses words heaven, earth, mountain, symbolically—the earth representing organized society, mountains representing kingdoms, seas the rest classes of humanity. Then he showed that in the same symbolic usage the heavens represent ecclesiastical powers—churchianity. The sign of the heavens, he believes, signifies that the flaming fire of Divine judgments will first manifest itself in ecclesiastical circles.

CHINESE HUMOR.

Illustrated by a Story of the Hospitality of Two Friends.

That the Chinese are possessed of a keen sense of humor is shown by the following anecdote which is related in the Spirit of the East Magazine:

"There were two men who had been friends from their school days. One lived in the town, the other in the country. After a separation lasting a whole year, the countryman decided to pay a visit to his friend the townsman. The latter gave him a hearty welcome, but the repast he furnished consisted merely of two bowls of rice and a single egg.

"What a pity," he said with a great sigh, "that you came so early! If you had only waited for another year, my friend, we should have had fowl for our dinner, as this egg would have developed into a chicken!"

"Not long afterward the townsman returned the visit. For his entertainment the countryman cut a hard piece of bamboo rod into small pieces, salted them, roasted them in fat and served them up.

"What a pity," he ejaculated, "you came so late! If you had only come a year ago, my friend, we should have had tender bamboo shoots for dinner today!"

An Unrepresentative House.

One of the most elaborate calculations of the composition of the house of commons a hundred years ago is given in Dr. Oldfield's "Representative History." According to this, 218 members were returned by 87 peers in England and Wales, 81 members by 21 peers in Scotland and 51 members by 36 peers in Ireland. Thus just 300 members were returned by peers. In addition 137 members were returned by 90 commoners in England and Wales, 14 members by 14 commoners in Scotland and 20 members by 19 commoners in Ireland, while the treasury commanded 11 seats, the admiralty 4 and the ordnance 1. Consequently in a house of 658 members 171 could claim to be more or less independent—London Chronicle.

How We Go to Sleep.

Sleep begins in its first phase by a state of distraction, which brings on states of absentmindedness, accompanied always by numerous and separate hallucinations, closely connected with the length of the absentminded states. Immediately afterward, in a second phase, these states of distraction pass into a very delicate motor disturbance, due to the absence of parallelism in the axes of the eyes or by the deviation of their conjugate movements, says the Family Doctor. Finally, in a third and final phase, which indicates the very near approach of actual sleep, the vasomotor system seems to conform to laws very different from those that regulate its mechanism during waking hours.

CREPT INTO HARBOR.

British Submarine Fired Torpedoes at Germans, Then Slipped Out.

HULL, Sept. 8.—Early last week the destroyers and submarines of the British fleet, by close surveillance, discovered a passage between the mines which the German destroyers used in coming out to the North Sea. With that information in hand, a flotilla of submarines and destroyers proceeded to round up the German ships. When the operation was finished one submarine was missing, and had been given up for lost, when she suddenly reappeared with a startling story.

The submarine had actually penetrated into the harbor of Bremerhaven, where she fired two torpedoes. The Germans were panic stricken. In the midst of the panic the submarine "went to sleep" on the bottom of the harbor.

For hours the ship and crew remained there while the harbor was being trawled, but fortunately the trawlers did not pass over her. As soon as he considered it was safe the commander gave the order to proceed out of the German harbor, the submarine returning across the North Sea without any mishap.

Trying To Rouse China.

PEKIN, Sept. 8.—Protesting to the Foreign Office against its note of Sept. 3, addressed to the diplomatic representatives in Pekin and referring to the transgression of Chinese neutrality by the landing of Japanese troops at Lunkow, Baron von Maltzan, the German charge d'affaires, declared yesterday that Germany would hold the Chinese responsible for permitting Japanese and British soldiers to cross her territory.

Is Chasing Nurnberg.

HONOLULU, Sept. 8.—The Watson Navigation Co.'s steamer Wilhelmina reported on arrival here yesterday that she picked up a wireless message from the Australian Dreadnought Australia, then in Hawaiian waters, saying that she was in full chase of the German cruiser Nurnberg, which left here Sept. 1.

Huge German Losses.

COPENHAGEN, Sept. 8.—Private information received here says two German officers now imprisoned at Antwerp estimate the total German losses up to two days ago as between 200,000 and 300,000.

the Pastor replied that this is not thought. He reminded his audience that the Bible repeatedly uses words heaven, earth, mountain, symbolically—the earth represents organized society, mountains representing kingdoms, seas the rest classes of humanity. Then he stated that in the same symbolical universe the heavens represent ecclesiastical powers—churchianity. The signs of the heavens, he believes, sign that the flaming fire of Divine judgments will first manifest itself ecclesiastical circles.

Gradually mankind will realize that a new government is in control and that justice will be laid to line and righteousness to the people. Since unrighteousness is everywhere prevalent because of man's fallen condition, the consciences of the whole world will be awakened, speaker declared. Fear will come on men everywhere, not only because they will see Christ's righteous judgments in religious circles, but because they will see Him coming drawing nearer in judgment—will recognize that shortly they must be involved.

The Pastor reminded his audience that mankind have very crude incorrect views of the object of Messiah's Second Coming and King Jesus' "Doctrines of devils," brought the creeds during the Dark Ages have made so void the Word of God that the majority of mankind do as their Almighty Foe, instead of realizing Him to be the Father of mercies. Not knowing of the glorious blessings which Messiah's Kingdom will bring mankind, they will apprehensive as they perceive Christ's righteous judgments encircling the earth. Only those truly Lord's and rightly informed respecting the Divine Plan of the Ages be able to rejoice, knowing that deliverance draweth near.

Next was discussed at length Peter's words, "The heavens being on fire," and "the earth and the world therein will be burned up." The Pastor believed describes the Son of Man. He warned hearers against making the mistake of our forefathers in supposing these words refer to a literal burning of the literal earth and sky, and explained that while the symbol heavens and earth will catch fire pass away with a great commotion the physical earth will remain physically as it is, and begin to undergo the transforming influences of Re-creation.

The speaker then demonstrated that the flaming fire of Divine judgments will appear in the heaven of ecclesiasticism—and subsequently reach the earth, purifying society from everything sinful, selfish, just, and preparing men's hearts Divine blessings. "The elements melt with fervent heat." We see capitalistic and the laboring elements separating. We see preparations the great Time of Trouble. This are getting so hot that present spontaneous combustion will set and clear the way for Messiah's Kingdom.

PASTOR RUSSELL

August 23.— The beauty and instructiveness of The Photo-Drama of Creation are more and more appreciated by the public as time passes. This wonderful combination of Biblical illustrations completely outlines the Scriptures and lays a good foundation for intelligent bible study.

Pastor Russell's topic to-day was from the text, "Then shall appear the sign of the Son of Man in heaven; and then shall the tribes of the earth mourn, and they shall see the Son of man coming in the clouds of heaven with power and great glory."—Matthew 24:30.

The speaker pointed out various suggestions made by scholars respecting the import of this prophecy—some guessing that the sign would be across in the sky; others, that it could be Christ Himself, appearing in some wrathful form to humanity, using dismay; etc. He surmised his audience had read published reports of his recent sermon respecting Christ's Second Coming in its two bases—the Parousia, or invisible presence, followed by the Epiphany, a bright-shining in flaming fire, or judgment. He could not say that the sign of the Son of Man would be His arousing; for Christ's Parousia will be known except to the most divinely of His Church. Consequently it must stand related to His Epiphany, or shining forth in judgments, which the whole world will recognize.

The hearers were reminded that a sign is merely an indication; for instance, crepe is a sign of mourning, the cross represents Christianity, the crescent Mohammedanism. So the sign of the Son of Man in heaven could properly be some indication that He has taken His great power and begun to reign. Since He is to be revealed in flaming fire, taking vengeance, this sign must be some indication of righteous indignation against wrong.

Mourning Because of Him.

To the question, How could such a sign appear in the sky, the heavens?

Pastor replied that this is not the sought.

He reminded his audience that the Bible repeatedly uses the words heaven, earth, mountain, sea, symbolically—the earth representing organized society, mountains representing kingdoms, seas the restless lasses of humanity. Then he showed that in the same symbolical usage the heavens represent ecclesiastical powers—churchianity. The sign in the heavens, he believes, signifies that the flaming fire of Divine judgments will first manifest itself in ecclesiastical circles.

TOWN COUNCIL.

Council Chamber.

Sept. 8th, 1914.

Council met in regular session on Tuesday evening, Mayor Alexander in the chair.

Present—Keeve Denison and Councillors Walters, Wiseman, Waller, Carson, Dickinson.

The minutes of the last regular and special sessions were read and confirmed.

A communication was read from Haggerty & Co., asking permission to fence off a portion of Centre Street in front of the drill hall property, for traffic outside the enclosure. They would construct a suitable wall.

On motion the council decided to allow Haggerty & Co., to fence off thirty feet of Centre street, immediately in front of the drill hall site, said petitioners to assume all responsibility for any accident or damage which may occur by reason of such obstruction.

A communication from the chairman of the Public Library Board, asked the Council to pay over to the said Board the town's grant of $300 made to that institution when the estimates were prepared.

Laid on the table.

Several communications from the C.N.R. officials in reference to their proposed new station were read. No definite action is at present being taken and the council was given to understand that nothing would be done without advising the town of such action.

Ordered filed.

A communication was read from the Sawyer-Massey Co., Hamilton, stating they had made no demands re payment for new sprinklers, and it was not their policy to ask for payment for any of their machinery in the hands of customers that was not satisfactory in every particular. Also that the unsatisfactory condition of the sprinklers would receive their immediate attention.

Ordered filed.

A by-law for the appointment of an electrical inspector to enforce the rules and regulations of the Hydro-Electric Power Commission of Ontario was introduced and given its second reading. The council in committee of the whole then rose and reported progress and begged leave to sit again.

On motion of Coun. Waller and Reeve Denison the Clerk was instructed to write the Sawyer-Massey Co., informing them that the new sprinklers recently purchased from them are not satisfactory, as they are very leaky around the spray when being filled and cannot be controlled.

On motion of Councillors Waller and Dickinson, the Streets Committee were instructed to proceed with the construction of cement walks, commencing on Water Street, near the property of Mr. Clancy, and continuing on the north side of said Water street to the westerly limits of the corporation; on the east side of Donald street, from Dundas to Bridge streets; and on the east side of Pearl street, said walks to be constructed in the order above named.

Mr. John Chatterton appeared before the Council and asked for the construction of about forty feet of cement walk in front of his property on the south side of Dundas street, also a crosting leading thereto.

Request granted.

On motion of Coun. Waller and Reeve Denison the use of the Town Hall and Council Chamber was granted to the Red Cross Society whenever needed for the use of their benevolent work.

On motion the request of the chairman of the Public Library Board was

INCREASED DEMAND FOR CANADIAN MADE ELECTRIC LAMPS

The tungsten and incandescent lamp industry in Canada will benefit through the industrial conditions created by the war. There have been large importations of tungsten and incandescent lamps from Continental Europe into Canada and these importations will be greatly curtailed, if not completely shut off, as a result of the war. This will result—indeed has resulted already—in greatly increased demands upon the Canadian manufacturers of these articles.

When the war broke out the plant of the Canadian Tungsten Lamp Co., Limited, at Hamilton was shut down for the summer. Under ordinary conditions operations would have been resumed until September 15. In view of the probability of an increased demand on account of the war the plant was put in operation on August 15—a month ahead of the usual time. Since operations were re-commenced the staff has been employed several nights a week in an effort to keep up with the demand. Although the present output of the plant is 75 per cent. greater than under normal conditions it is not sufficient to meet the increased demand. Recently three large orders, which under normal conditions would have kept the plant busy for three weeks, were refused because of the difficulty of filling orders already in hand.

The plant of the Canadian Sunbeam Co., Limited, in Toronto, was re-opened on July 28th after the usual thirty-day shut down. This plant has been operated ever since at full capacity and plans are being made to double last year's output.

There are technical difficulties in the way of operating a double shift in a tungsten or incandescent lamp factory. The work is of a technical nature and it takes a new employee some considerable time to become adept at it. However, if the present demand upon the Canadian tungsten and incandescent lamp factories continues, as is likely to be the case, the training of additional shifts for night work will be necessary.

The Canadian manufacturers of tungsten and incandescent lamps had some problems to face in connection with the securing of a certain raw material which has been coming from some of the countries involved in the war. It is understood a solution of these problems has been found, and there will be no serious inconvenience on this score.

Increased Activities in the Canadian Cotton Mills

The war in Europe is causing greatly increased activity in the cotton industry in Canada. Cotton factories that were running on short time for months previous to the breaking out of hostilities are now being operated at full capacity. In many plants the employees are working overtime three or four nights a week, while in some plants night and day shifts are being employed. Although much of the overtime and employment of double shifts is due to rush orders from the Government, conditions in the cotton industry are such as to justify the belief that practically all employees of Canadian cotton mills are assured of continued employment at full time.

The imports of manufactured cotton into Canada have been running at about 60 per cent. of the consumption in this country. While the largest importations have come from the United Kingdom there have been substantial imports from Germany, France and Switzerland also. The shutting off imports from Germany and the curtailment of imports from France and Switzerland means that much of the cotton that has been imported into Canada from these countries will now have to be made in this country. The Canadian cotton mills are also being called upon to supply a portion of the trade that formerly went to the United Kingdom. This is due to the increased cost of cotton imported from the United Kingdom owing to increased freight rates, exchange, and insurance, and to uncertainty on the part of many dealers regarding delay or loss in shipment.

The condition of stocks in the retail trade in Canada at the commencement of hostilities was another factor in bringing about the increased demand upon the Canadian cotton mills. For some time previous to the breaking out of the war the consumption of cotton in Canada had been very much under normal. Unsatisfactory business conditions had resulted in dealers allowing their stock to run down.

It is a significant and most encouraging fact that since the commencement of hostilities most of such orders have been released for immediate shipment. The release of those orders, together with the receipt of new orders from regular customers who had delayed ordering because of uncertainty as to the crop and business conditions generally, and orders from other dealers who had formerly ordered abroad, are giving the cotton industry in Canada a great impetus at this time.

The putting of cotton to new uses to replace other imported raw materials that cannot be secured is still another reason for increased activities in the cotton industries in this country. It has been customary to use jute in the making of sugar bags and flour bags for export purposes. Jute, in its raw state, comes from India, and, as a rule is manufactured in the United Kingdom. The holding up of several shipments of jute has resulted in a dearth of jute in Canada, and the substitution of heavy cotton for jute in the manufacture of flour and sugar bags. If the importation of jute continues to be impossible or is materially curtailed it may be necessary to use heavy cotton instead of jute in the making of oil cloth. Other possible uses for cotton are being investigated by Canadian manufacturers and as one of them puts it, "new uses are being discovered every day."

Thus the outlook for the cotton industry in Canada is brighter to-day than it has been for some time. It is true some manufacturers are a little uneasy regarding the supply of dye-stuffs and chemicals, which have come in the past from Germany, but the general opinion is that with some readjustments and perhaps some changes in shades, sufficient dye-stuffs and chemicals to meet the Canadian demand will be secured. Everything points to a busy winter for all the Canadian cotton mills and to continu-

ABOUT THE WAR.

The following are extracts from a letter written from Paris on August 21st by Mrs. George I. Ham, of Whittier, California, to a friend in Napanee.

"It almost looks as if they had postponed this terrible war until I was here. Could one ever imagine that I should be in anything like this! Little over a year ago I was in Mexico and kept there over a month waiting for means to get out. Now I am here and have missed two passages I had engaged on steamers because I could not reach either England or Rotterdam, at least I would be allowed to take with me only a handbag and share a stateroom with fifteen other women, so I decided to wait and see what would turn up.

Well the Mexican war was child's play to this. One would have to be here to see the remarkable change in the city. I have a great respect for the French people. Such system down to the tiniest detail and the brave manner in which the soldiers go away to the front singing. But oh! the red-eyed women left behind! Already amongst my acquaintances the tags are coming back, which means the former wearers are gone forever. Each one is numbered and when the number is returned they know. It tells the sad story. Not a word. Perhaps when the cruel war is over some comrade may bring a last message but now there is nothing but the silent tags.

All the principle hotels are closed, all the large shops too, not an omnibus moving where before there were more than in any other city in the world. Not a theatre is open. At first there was not a taxi nor a carriage. Now there are a few. Some old men too old for the army or young men under eighteen are being taught to drive them. The women are cleaning the streets. In fact you see women doing nearly everything. Living is not any higher."

For some time previous to the breaking out of the war the consumption of cotton in Canada had been very much under normal. The Story of Waitstill Baxter

By KATE DOUGLAS WIGGIN

CHAPTER I.

The Sisters.

FAR, far up in the bosom of New Hampshire's granite hills the Saco has its birth. As the mountain rill gathers strength it takes

Through Bartlett's vales its tuneful way,
Or hides in Conway's fragrant brakes
Retreating from the glare of day.

Now it leaves the mountains and flows through "green Fryeburg's woods and farms."

In the course of its frequent turns and twists and bends it meets with many another stream and sends it, fuller and stronger, along its rejoicing way. When it has journeyed more than 100 miles and is nearing the ocean it greets the Great Ossipee river and accepts its crystal tribute. Then in its turn the Little Ossipee joins forces and the river, now a splendid stream, flows onward to Bountiful Eagle, to Moderation and to Salmon falls, where it dashes over the dam like a young Niagara and hurtles in a foamy torrent through the rugged defile cut between lofty banks of solid rock.

Widening out placidly for a moment's rest in the sunny reaches near Pleasant point it gathers itself for a new plunge at Union falls, after which it speedily merges itself in the bay and is fresh water no more.

At one of the falls on the Saco the two little hamlets of Edgewood and Riverboro nestle together at the bridge and make one village. The stream is a wonder of beauty just here, a mirror of placid loveliness above the dam, a tawny, roaring wonder at the fall and a mad, white-flecked torrent as it dashes on its way to the ocean.

The river has seen strange sights in its time, though the history of these two tiny villages is quite unknown to the great world outside. They have been born, waxed strong and fallen almost to decay while Saco water has tumbled over the rocks and spent itself in its impetuous journey to the sea.

It remembers the yellow moccasined Sokokis as they issued from the Indian Cellar and carried their birchen canoes along the wooded shore. It was in those years that the silver-skinned salmon leaped in its crystal depths, the otter and the beaver crept with sleek wet skins upon its shore and the brown deer came down to quench his thirst at its brink, while at twilight the stealthy forms of bear and panther and wolf were mirrored in its glassy surface.

Time sped. Men chained the river's turbulent forces and ordered it to grind at the mill. Then houses and barns appeared along its banks, bridges were built, orchards planted, forests changed into farms, white-painted meeting houses gleamed through the trees and distant halls chewed the arm of one of the bystanders, and the cheers of the throng when a plucky captain of the local militia thrust a stake down the beast's throat—these sounds displaced the former warwhoop of the Indians and the ring of the ax in the virgin forests along the shores.

There were days and moonlight nights, too, when strange sights and sounds of quite another nature could have been noted by the river as it flowed under the bridge that united the two little villages.

Issuing from the door of the Riverboro townhouse and winding down the hill through the long row of teams and carriages that lined the roadside, came a procession of singing men and singing women. Convinced of sin, but entranced with promised pardon, spiritually intoxicated by the glowing eloquence of the latter-day prophet they were worshiping, the band of "Cochranites" marched down the dusty road and across the bridge, dancing, swaying, waving handkerchiefs and shouting bosañas.

God watched and listened, knowing that there would be other prophets true and false, in the days to come and other processions following them. And the river watched and listened, too, as it hurried on toward the sea with its story of the present that was some time to be the history of the past.

When Jacob Cochrane was leading his overwrought, ecstatic band across the river, Waitstill Baxter, then a child was watching the strange, noisy company from the window of a little brick dwelling on the top of the Town House hill.

Her stepmother stood beside her with a young baby in her arms, but when she saw what held the gaze of the child she drew her away, saying, "We mustn't look, Waitstill; your father don't like it!"

"Who was the big man at the head, mother?"

"His name is Jacob Cochrane, but you mustn't think or talk about him. He is very wicked."

"He doesn't look any wickeder than the others," said the child. "Who was the man that fell down in the road mother, and the woman that knelt and prayed over him? Why did he fall, and why did she pray, mother?"

"That was Master Aaron Boynton the schoolmaster, and his wife. He only made believe to fall down, as the Cochranites do; the way they carry or is a disgrace to the village, and that's the reason your father won't let us look at them."

"I played with a nice boy over to Boynton's," mused the child.

"That was Ivory, their only child. He is a good little fellow, but his mother and father will spoil him with their crazy ways."

"I hope nothing will happen to him for I love him," said the child gravely. "He showed me a humming bird's nest the first I ever saw, and the littlest!"

"Don't talk about loving him," chided the woman. "If your father should bear you he'd send you to bed without your porridge."

"Father couldn't bear me, for I never speak when he's at home," said gravity-little Waitstill. "And I'm used to going to bed without my porridge."

cheap happiness for today! I shall never be seventeen again and we have so many troubles. Let's put one of the cows in the horse's stall and see what will happen! Or let's spread up our beds with the head at the foot and put the chest of drawers on the other side of the room, or let's make candy! Do you think father would miss the molasses if we only use a cupful? Couldn't we strain the milk, but leave the churning and the dishes for an hour or two, just once? If you say 'yes' I can think of something wonderful to do!"

"What is it?" asked Waitstill, relenting at the sight of the girl's eager, roguish face.

"Pierce my ears!" cried Patty. "Say you will!"

"Oh! Patty, Patty, I am afraid you are given over to vanity! I daren't let you wear eardrops without father's permission."

"Why not? Lots of church members wear them, so it can't be a mortal sin."

Father is against all adornments, but that's because he doesn't want to buy them. You've always said I should have your mother's coral pendants when I was old enough. Here I am, seventeen today, and Dr. Perry says I am already a well favored young woman. I can pull my hair over my ears for a few days, and when the holes are all made and healed even father cannot make me fill them up again. Besides, I'll never wear the earrings at home!"

"Oh, my dear, my dear!" sighed Waitstill, with a half sob in her voice. "If only I was wise enough to know how we could keep from these little deceits, yet have any liberty or comfort in life!"

"We can't! The Lord couldn't expect

Waitstill paused a moment in the task of bread kneading. "Well," she answered critically, "at least we know where our father is."

"We do indeed. We also know that he is thoroughly alive."

"And, though people do talk about him, they can't say the things they say of Master Aaron Boynton. I don't believe father would ever run away and desert us."

"I fear not," said Patty. "I wish the angels would put the idea into his head, though, of course, it wouldn't be the angels. They'd be above it. It would have to be the 'old driver,' Jed Morrill calls the evil one. B whoever did it the result would be the same—we should be deserted and happily ever after. Oh, to be desert and left with you alone on this hilltop, what joy it would be!"

CHAPTER II.

Deacon Baxter's Wives.

WAITSILL frowned, but did not interfere further with Patty's intemperate speech.

She knew that she was simply serving as an escape valve at that after the steam was "let off" she would be more rational.

"Of course we are motherless," continued Patty wistfully, "but poor Ivory is worse than motherless."

"No, not worse, Patty," said Waitstill, taking the bread board and moving toward the closet. "Ivory loves his mother, and she loves him with the mind she has left. She has the best blood of New England flowing her veins, and I suppose it was a great comedown for her to marry Aaron Boynton, clever and gifted though he was. Now Ivory has to protect her poor, daft, innocent creature—and bring her away from the gossip of the village. He is surely the best of sons Ivory Boynton."

"She is a terrible care for him alike to spoil his life," said Patty.

"There are cares that swell the heart and make it bigger and warmer, Patt just as there are cares that shrivel and leave it tired and cold. Love lights Ivory's afflictions, but that something you and I have to do with, so it seems."

"I suppose little Rodman is soon comfort to the Boyntons, even if he only ten?" Patty suggested.

"No doubt. He's a good little fellow, and though it's rather hard for Ivory to be burdened for these last few years with the support of a child who's no nearer kin than a cousin still he's of use, minding Mrs. Boynton and the house when Ivory's away."

The schoolteacher says he is wonderful at his books and likely to be great credit to the Boyntons some day or other."

"You've forgot to name our one great blessing, Waitly, and I believe, an way, you're talking to keep my mind off the earrings!"

"You mean we've each other? No Patty, I never forget that, day night. 'Tis that makes me willing to bear any burden father chooses to put upon us. Now the bread is set, but don't believe I have the courage to put a needle into your tender flesh, Patt I really don't."

otter and the beaver crept with sleek wet skins upon its shore and the brown deer came down to quench his thirst at its brink, while at twilight the stealthy forms of bear and panther and wolf were mirrored in its glassy surface.

Time sped. Men chained the river's turbulent forces and ordered it to grind at the mill. Then houses and barns appeared along its banks, bridges were built, orchards planted, forests changed into farms, white painted meeting houses gleamed through the trees, and distant bells rang from their steeples on quiet Sunday mornings.

All at once myriads of great hewn logs vexed its downward course, slender logs linked together in long rafts and huge logs drifting down singly or in pairs. Men appeared, running hither and thither like ants and going through mysterious operations the reason for which the river could never guess. But the mill wheels turned, the great saws buzzed, the smoke from tavern chimneys rose in the air, and the rattle and clatter of stagecoaches resounded along the road.

Now children paddled with bare feet in the river's sandy coves and shallows, and lovers sat on its older shaded banks and exchanged their vows just where the shuffling bear was wont to come down and drink.

The Saco could remember the "cold year," when there was a black frost every month of the twelve, and, though almost all the corn along its shores shriveled on the stalk, there were two farms where the vapor from the river saved the crops, and all the seed for the next season came from the favored spot, to be known as "Egypt" from that day henceforward.

Strange, complex things now began to happen, and the river played its own part in some of these, for there were disastrous freshets, the sudden breaking up of great jams of logs and the drowning of men who were engulfed in the dark whirlpool below the rapids.

Caravans, with menageries of wild beasts, crossed the bridge now every year. An infuriated elephant lifted the side of the old Edgewood tavern barn, and the wild laughter of the roistering rum drinkers who were tantalizing the animals floated down to the river's edge. The roar of a lion, tearing and

"Don't talk about loving him," said the woman. "If your father should hear you he'd send you to bed without your porridge."

"Father couldn't hear me, for I never speak when he's at home," said grave little Waitstill. "And I'm used to going to bed without my porridge."

* * * * *

The river was still running under the bridge, but the current of time had swept Jacob Cochrane out of sight, though not out of mind, for he had left here and there a disciple to preach his strange and uncertain doctrine. Waitstill, the child who never spoke in her father's presence, was a young woman now, the mistress of the house; the stepmother was dead and the baby a girl of seventeen.

The brick cottage on the hilltop had grown only a little shabbier. Deacon Foxwell Baxter still slammed its door behind him every morning at 7 o'clock and, without any such cheerful conventions as goodbyes to his girls, walked down to the bridge to open his store.

The day, properly speaking, had opened when Waitstill and Patience had left their beds at dawn, built the fire, fed the hens and turkeys and prepared the breakfast, while the deacon was grainning the horse and milking the cows. Such minor "chores" as carrying water from the well, splitting kindling, chopping pine or bringing wood into the kitchen were left to Waitstill, who had a strong back or if she had not had never been unwise enough to mention the fact in her father's presence. The almanac day, however, which opened with sunrise, had nothing to do with the real human day, which always began when Mr. Baxter slammed the door behind him and reached its high noon of delight when he disappeared from view.

"He's opening the store shutters!" chanted Patience from the heights of a kitchen chair by the window. "Now he's taken his cane and beaten off the Boynton puppy that was sitting on the steps as usual. I don't mean Ivory's dog" (here the girl gave a quick glance at her sister), "but Rodman's little yellow cur. Rodman must have come down to the bridge on some errand for Ivory. Isn't it odd when that dog has all the other store steps to sit upon he should choose father's when every bone in his body must tell him how father hates him and the whole Boynton family?"

"Father has no real cause that I ever heard of. But some dogs never know when they've had enough beating nor some people either," said Waitstill, speaking from the pantry.

"Don't be gloomy when it's my birthday, sis. Now he's opened the door and kicked the cat. All is ready for business at the Baxter store."

"I wish you weren't quite so free with your tongue, Patty."

"Somebody must talk," retorted the girl, jumping down from the chair and shaking back her mop of red gold curls. "I'll put this hateful, childish, round comb in and out just once more, then it will disappear forever. This very afternoon up goes my hair!"

"You know it will be of no use unless you braid it very plainly and neatly. Father will take notice and make you smooth it down."

"Father hasn't looked me square in the face for years, besides my hair won't braid and nothing can make it quite plain and neat, thank goodness! Let us be thankful for small mercies, as Jed Morrill said when the lightning struck his mother-in-law and skipped his wife."

"Patty, I will not permit you to re-seveneen today, and Dr. Terry says I am already a well favored young woman. I can pull my hair over my ears for a few days, and when the holes are all made and healed even father cannot make me fill them up again. Besides, I'll never wear the earrings at home!"

"Oh, my dear, my dear!" sighed Waitstill, with a half sob in her voice. "If only I was wise enough to know how we could keep from these little deceits, yet have any liberty or comfort in life!"

"We can't! The Lord couldn't expect us to bear all we bear," exclaimed Patty. "without our trying once in a while to have a good time in our own way. We never do a thing that we are ashamed of or that other girls don't do every day in the week; only our pleasures always have to be taken behind father's back. It's only me that's ever wrong, anyway, for you are always an angel. It's a burning shame, and you only twenty-one yourself. I'll pierce your ears if you say so and let you wear your own coral drops!"

"No, Patty! I've outgrown those longings years ago. When your mother died and left father and you and the house to me my girlhood died, too, though I was only fourteen."

"It was only your inside girlhood that died," insisted Patty stoutly. "The outside is as fresh as the paint on Uncle Barty's new ell. You've got the loveliest eyes and hair in Riverboro, and you know it; besides, Ivory Boynton would tell you so if you didn't. Come and bore my ears, there's a darling!"

"Ivory Boynton never speaks a word of my looks, nor a word that father and all the world mightn't bear." And Waitstill flushed.

"Then it's because he's shy and silent and has so many troubles of his own that he doesn't dare say anything. When my hair is once up and the coral pendants are swinging in my ears I shall expect to hear something about my looks, I can tell you. Waitly, after all, though we never have what we want to eat and never a decent dress to our backs, nor a young man to cross the threshold, I wouldn't change places with Ivory Boynton, would you?" Here Patty swept the hearth vigorously with a turkey wing and added a few corn-

"You'll never go through life w one tongue at the rate you use it now chidde Waitstill, "for it will never le you. Come, we'll take the workbas and go out in the barn where no o will see or hear us."

"Goody, goody! Come along!" a Patty clapped her hands in triumph. "Have you got the pencil and t needle and the waxed silk? saw to that! If change of conviction or backsliding occurred later on that was not their business! At the ripe age of twenty-five he was selected to fill a vacancy and became a deacon, thinking it might be good for trade, as it was, for some years. He was very active at the time of the "Ochreane craze," since any defense of the creed that included lively detective work and incessant spying on his neighbors was particularly in his line, but for many years now, though he had been regular in attendance at church, he had never officiated at communion and his deacons services had gradually lapsed into the passing of the contribution box, a task of which he never wearied, it was such a keen pleasure to make other people yield their pennies for a good cause without adding his own!

Deacon Baxter had now been a widower for nine years, and the community had almost relinquished the idea of his seeking a fourth wife. This was a matter of some regret, for there was a general feeling that it would be a good thing for the Baxter girls to have some one to help with the housework and act as a buffer between them and their grim and irascible parent. As for the women of the village, they were mortified that the Deacon had been able to secure three wives and refused to believe that the universe held anywhere a creature benighted enough to become his fourth.

The first, be it said, was a mere ignorant girl, and he a beardless youth of twenty, who may not have shown his true qualities so early in life. She bore him two sons, and it was a matter of comment at the time that she called them, respectively, Job and Moses, hoping that the endurance and meekness connected with these names might somehow help them in their future relations with their father. Pneumonia, coupled with profound discouragement, carried her off in a few years to make room for the second wife, Waitstill's mother, who was of different fiber and greatly his superior. She was a fine, handsome girl, the orphan daughter of up country gentlefolks who had died when she was eighteen, leaving her alone in the world and penniless.

Baxter, after a few days' acquaintance, drove into the dooryard of the house where she was a visitor and, showing her his two curly headed boys, suddenly asked her to come and be their stepmother. She assented, partly because she had nothing else to do with her existence so far as she could see, and also because she fell in love with the children at first sight and forgot, as girls will, that it was their father whom she was marrying.

She was as plucky and clever and spirited as she was handsome, and she made a brave fight of it with Foxy, long enough to bring a daughter into the world, to name her Waitstill and start her a little way on her life journey—then she, too, gave up the struggle and died. Typhoid fever it was, combined with complete loss of illusions and a kind of despairing rage at having made so complete a failure of her existence.

The next year Mr. Baxter, being unusually busy, offered a man a good young heifer if he would jog about the country a little and pick him up a housekeeper, a likely woman who would if she proved energetic, economical and amiable be eventually raised to the proud position of his wife. If she was young, healthy, smart, tidy, capable and a good manager, able to milk the cows, harness the horse and make good butter he would give a dol-a sight of comfort out of the baby, but I wouldn't go through it again, not even for her! You're real smart and capable for your age, and you've done your full share of the work every day, even when you were at school. You can get along all right."

"I don't know how I'm going to do everything alone," said the girl, forcing back her tears. "You've always made the brown bread, and mine will never suit father. I suppose I can wash, but I don't know how to iron starched clothes, nor make pickles, and oh! I can never kill a rooster, mother, it's no use to ask me to! I'm not big enough to be the head of the family."

Mrs. Baxter turned her pale, tired face away from Waitstill's appealing eyes.

"I know," she said faintly. "I hate to leave you to bear the brunt alone, but I must! * * * Take good care of Patience and don't let her get into trouble. * * * You won't, will you?"

"I'll be careful," promised Waitstill, sobbing quietly. "I'll do my best."

"You've got more courage than ever I had; don't you suppose you can stiffen up and defend yourself a little mite? Your father'd ought to be opposed, for his own good, but I've never seen anybody that dared do it." Then, after a pause, she said with a flash of spirit, "Anyhow, Waitstill, he's your father after all. He's no blood relation of mine, and I can't stand him another day; that's the reason I'm willing to die."

Ivory Boynton lifted the bars that divided his land from the highroad and walked slowly toward the house. It was April, but there were still patches of snow here and there, fast melting under a drizzling rain. It was a gray world, a bleak, black and brown world, above and below. The sky was leaden; the road and the footpath were deep in a muddy ooze flecked with white. The tree trunks, black, with bare branches, were outlined against the gray sky; nevertheless, spring had been on the way for a week, and a few sunny days would bring the yearly miracle for which all hearts were long-

"Spring is on the way, mother, but it isn't here yet, so don't stand there in the rain," he called. "Look at the nosegay I gathered for you as I came through the woods. Here are pussy willows and red maple blossoms and mayflowers, would you believe it?"

Lois Boynton took the handful of budding things and sniffed their fragrance.

"You're late tonight, Ivory," she said. "Rod wanted his supper early so that he could go off to singing school, but I kept something warm for you, and I'll make you a fresh cup of tea."

A Caustic Critic.

The Paris critic Martin once only had taken his chocolate in a place other than the Cafe Foy, and he then found it not good. This happened at the Regeuce, and the young woman at the desk, to whom he expressed his displeasure, said: "You are the only one to complain. All of the gentlemen of the court who come here find it good."

"They also say, perhaps, that you are pretty," he replied slowly.

her existence.

The next year Mr. Baxter, being unusually busy, offered a man a good young beifer if he would jog about the country a little and pick him up a housekeeper, a likely woman who would if she proved energetic, economical and amiable be eventually raised to the proud position of his wife. If she was young, healthy, smart, tidy, capable and a good manager, able to milk the cows, harness the horse and make good butter he would give a dollar and a half a week. The woman was found, and, incredible as it may seem, she said "Yes" when the deacon, whose ardor was kindled at having paid three months' wages, proposed a speedy marriage. The two boys by this time had reached the age of discretion, and one of them evinced the fact by promptly running away to parts unknown, never to be heard from afterward; while the other, a reckless and unhappy lad, was drowned while running on the logs in the river. Old Foxy showed little outward sign of his loss.

His third wife, the one originally secured for a housekeeper, bore him a girl, very much to his disgust, a girl named Patience, and great was Waitstill's delight at this addition to the dull household. The mother was a timid, colorless, docile creature, but Patience nevertheless was a sparkling, bright eyed baby, who speedily became the very center of the universe to the older child. So the months and years wore on drearily enough until when Patience was eight the third Mrs. Baxter succumbed after the manner of her predecessors and slipped away from a life that had grown intolerable. The trouble was diagnosed as "liver complaint," but scarcity of proper food, no new frocks or kind words, hard work and continual bullying may possibly have been contributory causes. Dr. Perry thought so, for he had witnessed three most contented deaths in the Baxter house. The ladies were all members of the church and had presumably made their peace with God, but the good doctor fancied that their pleasure in joining the angels was mild compared with their relief at parting with the deacon.

"I know I hadn't ought to put the care on you, Waitstill, and you only fourteen," poor Mrs. Baxter sighed, as the young girl was watching with her one night when the end seemed drawing near. "I've made out to live till now when Patience is old enough to dress herself and help round, but I'm all beat out and can't try any more." "Do you mean I'm to take your place, be a mother to Patience and keep house and everything?" asked Waitstill quaveringly.

"I don't see but you'll have to, unless your father marries again. He'll never hire help, you know that!"

"I won't have another mother in this house," flashed the girl. "There's been three here and that's enough! If he brings anybody home I'll take Patience and run away, as Job did, or if he leaves me alone I'll wash and iron and scrub and cook till Patience grows up, and then we'll go off together and hide somewhere. I'm fourteen. Oh, mother, how soon could I be married and take Patience to live with me? Do you think anybody will ever want me?"

"Don't marry for a home, Waitstill! Your own mother did that, and so did I, and we were both punished for it! You've been a great help, and I've had walked slowly toward the house. It was April, but there were still patches of snow here and there, fast melting under a drizzling rain. It was a gray world, a bleak, black and brown world, above and below. The sky was leaden; the road and the footpath were deep in a muddy ooze flecked with white. The tree trunks, black, with bare branches, were outlined against the gray sky; nevertheless, spring had been on the way for a week, and a few sunny days would bring the yearly miracle for which all hearts were longing.

Ivory was season wise, and his quick eye had caught many a sign as he walked through the woods from his schoolhouse. A new and different color haunted the tree tops, and one had only to look closely at the elm buds to see that they were beginning to swell. Some fat robins had been bouncing about in the schoolyard at noon, and the sparrows had been chirping and twittering on the fence rails. Yes, the winter was over, and Ivory was glad, for it had meant no coasting and skating and sleighing for him, but long walks in deep snow or slush, long evenings, good for study, but short days and greater loneliness for his mother. He could see her now as he neared the house and the woods took only about two miles from home and walk out and back once a day to see if they are still there."

Modernize your Kitchen

One by one the bugbears of housekeeping are being put to rout through the instrumentality of gas. The modern kitchen—which means the all-gas kitchen—is now a recognized part of the up-to-date home. The all-gas kitchen lightens labor. It means a clean, wholesome, sanitary kitchen, as there is no coal dust or ashes to be spread around, and it becomes a real pleasure to work in it. Every housewife desires to cook and heat water in the most economical way, in the quickest, most dependable way, with the least possible work.

The All-Gas way is the solution to the problem.

The hot weather is here now and if you want a cool, comfortable kitchen this summer come and select your Gas Range and Water Heater now. We have ranges at all prices.

HOGS ON PASTURE MAKE BIG PROFITS

To treble the profits from a crop of corn, making the land yield a return of more than $100 per acre, is no mean achievement on a corn belt farm, yet by pasturing young hogs on a mixture of rape and corn certain Iowa farmers are doing this very thing, writes W. H. Lancelot in the Orange Judd Farmer. Among them is M. D. Crow of Andubon county, Ia., who has accomplished it two years in succession. His experience is as follows:

Just before he laid by his corn in June, 1912, he sowed Dwarf Essex rape broadcast in ten acres of it, using five pounds of seed per acre. The cultivator covered it, and about six weeks later 170 spring pigs were turned into this ten acre field. They remained there

The Tamworth is a bacon hog and ranks high in this respect. He is an extremely rugged hog and rivals in size the large Yorkshire. The Tamworth is probably the most popular of all breeds of swine. He is inclined to be restless, but is usually gentle in disposition, and the sows are fine mothers. Tamworths are great rascals, and this habit probably accounts in large degree for their superior bacon qualities. They produce a carcass containing a low percentage of lean meat of bacon and have been found to go satisfactorily with the fat cuts of hams.

During early winter, when the corn had been cleaned up and the rape killed out by freezing. During this time they received little attention other than light feeding, since they had access to running water. As Mr. Crow puts it, "I hardly knew I had any hogs around."

When winter came, however, he found that he had around a numerous bunch of thrifty, half grown hogs with nearly unquenchable appetites and a surprising capacity for further growth. He fed them corn, mill feed and tankage until March, when they were sold at $7.50 per 100 pounds, bringing the farm that are neat, that are sanitary and that last forever. This change started with silos and fence posts, and there is no end to the uses to which the handy man about the house can put the versatile machine. Out on a farm in Illinois, where an acetylene generator supplies gaslight to the farmhouse, one man built a sort of cyclone cellar for the plant. Owing to the danger of explosions, the ordinary cautious citizen no longer cares to put a gas plant in the basement of his residence, but if this generator should explode it probably would not even shatter the walls of the little concrete house that contains it.

Fresh water is supplied to the chickens on another farm with the aid of a concrete pool. It is long and wide and so shallow that ducks and geese do not try to swim in it. A pump at one side supplies it with fresh water. This same flock of fortunate chickens has a solid concrete house of two rooms; one room has a concrete floor and perches for the convenience of its occupants, and the other room has a floor of earth, where the chickens can scratch about in the winter time. The roosting room, with the concrete floor, can be flushed out and kept perfectly sanitary, the water running from it to a waste outlet at one side.

When it comes to drainage on the farm concrete steps in and helps out the farmer. Culverts are now being made in sections so that, after the excavation is made and a solid concrete foundation put in the sides and the arch can be added later.

The silo, the first appliance to adapt itself to concrete, has grown enormously in size. One of the biggest of them is sixty-two feet high and has walls that are eight inches thick. It will hold enough ensilage to fatten five carloads of beef cattle. It only took a month to build it and its total cost was but $600. This is the latest type of silo, built tall, and with a small diameter, because in this way the room is used more economically. * * * The smaller the diameter the less waste there is in proportion.

All Around The Farm

YOUNG WOMEN ON FARMS.

Every Daughter of the Farmer's Family Can Be of Material Help. From Bulletin of New York State College of Agriculture.

We know that there is a large amount of work to be done in the farm home, but farmers' daughters in this country are very brave and capable and ready to lend a hand. As a general thing, the young woman has it in her power to make her work all drudgery or she can transform it into a pleasure. How to do this is for her to study out.

It used to be believed and said that the business of the farm ought to be wholly in the hands of the farmer and his sons. It is now understood that the work in the house is an essential part of the farm business, and that in the remainder of the labor of the farm the wife and the daughters have just as keen an interest as have the father and the brothers. Moreover, many a woman is nowadays undertaking the operation of the farm itself and is making good too.

It is quite possible to believe that every daughter can grow to be an aid to her father in his business as a farmer, and that gradually she may enter into full responsibility for some part of the farm business, or that perhaps if it should ever be necessary for her to do so, she may become a successful manager for all the activities of a farm.

In the farm home of early New England days the labor of the women included not only all the common work that falls to the hands of women in the present day, but also the spinning and weaving, the dyeing and fulling, the dressmaking and tailoring, the

DO YOU USE FACE POWDER?

If You Do Be Careful to Keep It From Getting in Your Eyes.

Face powder has its dangers same as gunpowder. For set years occasional cases have come under the observation of oculists in the patients, invariably women, plain of vision being blurred, inability to use the eyes for any length of time and severe itching of the lids. slightest rubbing of the lids produces a marked redness of the eyes and aggravates the itching. In some cases the lids are frequently swollen from constant rubbing. There is a sticky, elastic secretion which, when removed, pulls out in strings.

Microscopic examination of the secretion reveals masses of what appear to be crystals. Until recently no satisfactory explanation of the presence of these crystals in the eye has been given. Secretions taken from the eyes of two sisters suffering from this peculiar complaint were submitted to a professor of pathology of one of the university medical schools, who found that the crystals came from face powder. Seven other patients in the same symptoms and microscopic conditions were found all used powder.

When the powder is applied to the face with a puff a part of the fine powder is driven upward and lodges on the moist eyeball. The powder in the presence of the tears then becomes mucilaginous in character and is washed from under the eyelids. Powder produces the irritation, which is aggravated by rubbing. Those who use a chamois skin in applying powder are less liable to cause fine dust to arise, which probably counts for the condition not being found in every woman using face powder. The condition is quickly relieved by flushing the eye with boric acid solution. The irritation rapidly disappears when the eyes are kept washed out with a soothing eye wash.—From the Journal of the American Medical Association.

TROGLODYTES OF TRIPOLI

They Live Underground, Some of Them Never Seeing Daylight.

In the region of Gharian, in the desert land of Tripoli, there is an inland town with 7,000 inhabitants, the city of the Troglodytes was visited by Miss Ethel Braun and is described in her book, "The New Tripoli."

This city is excavated out of sand and earth. Its inhabitants live underground, some of them never coming to the surface. "The richer ones," says Miss Braun, "are born in these dwellings, never leaving them until they are carried out to be buried." Rich families have, however, one recreation room over the ground at a height of six or seven feet.

Describing the Troglodyte people, Miss Braun tells of an Italian lady's experience while visiting the prisoners.

"They had never seen a European woman before and asked her to take off her hat. No sooner had she done so that in a twinkling all her hair were pulled out, to be kept as souvenirs by the women, who looked upon them as most precious mementos."

The friendly Troglodytes drink Arab tea for Miss Braun, "shai," is called, made with powdered tea

He fed them corn, mill feed and tankage until March, when they were sold at $7.50 per 100 pounds, bringing $2,640.50.

Up to the time they were sold, these hogs had consumed 2,160 bushels of corn, valued at 40 cents per bushel, or $864; also mill feed and tankage costing $80.50. Thus their total feed bill, aside from the pasture, was $944.50, leaving a profit of $1,696.20.

As Mr. Crow figures it this $1,696.20 represents the returns from the ten acre field of rye and corn, since full allowance has been made for all other feeds, hence he realized $109.62 per acre from this field, whereas from the remainder of his corn land, which bore a straight crop of forty-five bushels per acre, worth 40 cents per bushel, he actually realized a return per acre of only $18.

WORLD'S POULTRY CONGRESS.

The poultry industry is rapidly perfecting its organizations and assuming the proportions of one of our greatest international industries. The call for the first world's poultry congress, to be held at The Hague in 1916, has been received with almost unanimous enthusiastic approval. The location of this conference is not so much out of the way as might appear to those who are unfamiliar with the Dutch poultry industry. Of late years great improvements have been made in that country, and some problems of worldwide interest are being worked out. In some respects the keeping of fowls is very highly developed there, and Holland comes near being the geographical center of the European poultry industry. All sides of the business will be treated at the congress—breeding, production, hygiene, research and commerce in poultry products.

The recent growth of interest in European bred fowls due to the winnings of English hens in American laying contests has impressed American poultrymen with the fact that we have something to learn from England, continental Europe and even far Australia.—Country Gentleman.

CONCRETE ON THE FARM.

Used For Barns, Silos, Henhouses, Bridges and Cellars.

Not long ago the farmer hardly knew what concrete was. Now he builds barns, silos, henhouses, bridges and cellars of it.

Where some years ago the farmer used a pile of old boards, a saw and a hammer to build his hen coop, his gate post and his water trough, he usually now takes part of a bag of cement, mixes it with sand and gravel and adapts concrete to his purposes.

Today he has many appliances about

WATER HORSES USE.

During the Hot Summer Season Horses Should Have Plenty to Drink.

In these hot summer days men never think of going to their work without taking a plenty of drinking water. And they have very little to fear from heat so long as they perspire freely and by drinking often keep up perspiration. But while providing for their own comfort and necessity very few ever give a thought to the fact that their horses when working in the hot sun perspire as copiously, and even more so, than the driver and need water just as much. It is but very little trouble to have a barrel or a tank on a log boat or sled, and when going to the field take it along with a pail in it, and two or three times in a half day give each horse a drink. In fact, the horse should have a drink as often as the driver. He will appreciate it fully as much. This is but very little trouble, as the water can be drawn along the headland, and when stopping to rest the collars should be raised from the shoulders and the horse given a sip of water. When this is done when the team is put into the stable at noon they are ready to be grain fed, and the trouble of taking out to water after standing to cool off is obviated.

The team very quickly will learn to indicate to the driver when they want a drink. A merciful man is merciful to his beast. He certainly ought to be kind to one of his most faithful friends.—National Stockman and Farmer.

THE YOUNG WOMAN ON THE FARM.

into full responsibility for some part of the farm business, or that perhaps if it should ever be necessary for her to do so, she may become a successful manager for all the activities of a farm.

In the farm home of early New England days the labor of the women included not only all the common work that falls to the hands of women in the present day, but also the spinning and weaving, the dyeing and fulling, the dressmaking and tailoring, the candle making and soapmaking and many other industries that now, along with those mentioned, have gone out of the farmhouse and taken up their abode in the factory. In those days the hands of the women were full of wage earning labor.

Today also there are many women, and especially young women, who feel that they need some addition to their earning opportunity, and to these many doors are now opening. The revival of our ancient industries offers an alluring prospect, although this may not be the most practical field.

Is it not generally the most sensible thing to take the opportunity that stands by one's own garden gate? Why not, then, make a careful study of the farm conditions right at hand in order to find out whether there may not be some fruit or vegetable product going to waste that can be utilized by the excellent modern methods of canning and preserving, so that the family may be economically supplied with delicacies all the year round, and some extra quantities may be sold that will bring a good income? Something like this should be possible for any energetic and capable farmer's daughter.

There are now over 6,000,000 country girls in our land. Does it not look as though this body of eager, buoyant young women might add something valuable to the welfare of our rural life?

Potatoes From Maine.

The United States department of agriculture has adopted new quarantine regulations for shipment of Maine potatoes. This is to prevent the spread of powdery scab. The new rules went into effect Aug. 1. The regulations provide that no potatoes shall be moved from any quarantined area unless they are duly certified as fit for either table or seed use and are packed in accordance with certified rules. To obtain the necessary certificates for shipments growers must apply for inspection by a federal inspector, and all potatoes intended for seed use must be stored and handled according to certain prescribed methods. Lots in which any of the potatoes are found to be infected with powdery scab or any similar disease will not be certified under any circumstances for seed use. They may, however, be certified for table use after the diseased potatoes are removed and destroyed.

Caring For the Piano.

One of those popular fellows who can sit down at a piano and play accompaniments to songs, even when the "music" is not forthcoming, happened to be in a little village recently when a concert was almost stopped through the pianist disappointing the last minute. Our friend, says the Glasgow News, came to the rescue and got the company out of its difficulty but inwardly he applied to the instrument adjectives which would shock even George Bernard Shaw. After the performance the caretaker (a "lady") was covering up for the night, and the player mentioned to her that the piano was very much in need of attention but she scolded the idea. "Why," said she, "I went over it myself this morning and scrubbed every part of it, ke and all."

It was some time, says the Manchester Guardian, before the master puzzled brain understood that "candid" and "clandestine" were synonymous.

You Do Be Careful to Keep It From Getting in Your Eyes.

Face powder has its dangers the same as gunpowder. SUMMER TOKENS.Souvenirs From Vacationists to Stay at Home Friends.*INEXPENSIVE GIFTS BEST.

Seaside Novelties That Are Always Popular—Dainty and Attractive Remembrances That Convey a Delicate Compliment to the Recipient.

Every summer journey, even if it be only to the next state, is productive of souvenirs for the friends at home. Something characteristic of the place you are visiting is usually a good choice.

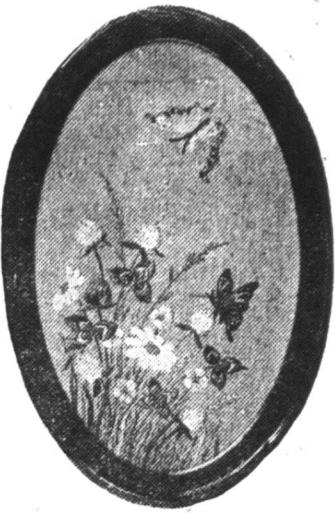

If you pass the summer at a seaside place, for instance, make part of your diversion the gathering of shells. Arrange the rarest of them for some small boy who is collecting shells or who keeps curios of all sorts, as small boys have a habit of doing. Put the rest in little chintz bags or baskets for the various small children of your acquaintance.

Perhaps you are especially interested in some children's hospital or home. If so make bags of shells for the children in this institution.

For the rather proud old lady who lives in a boarding house, with a canary as her beloved companion, gather clean sand when the tide is low and pack it neatly into boxes—enough to last throughout the winter as a covering for the bird's cage floor.

For the young mother buy lace from the peddlers who always haunt seaside places with lace to sell.

Perhaps some one you know is especially interested in sailboats. For her make a collection of pictures of sailboats—snapshots with your own camera, postcards of sailboats, photographs bought at a seaside shop, etc.

For the botanist collect specimens of the flora of the locality. Press all the flowers and leaves you can find and label them carefully. They will prove an interesting addition to a botanical collection.

For the housewife the little tray illustrated here would make a gift much liked. The flowers and butterflies are a charming suggestion of summer.

An embroidery of this style might be at one side, and very pretty this looks when the veil is adroitly arranged over the face.

Very attractive veils for motoring of chiffon, with squares or circles of shadow lace set in to cover the face, are sold in the shops at varying prices. These are infinitely more comfortable than the all chiffon veil, which clings uncomfortably to the face in warm weather, and they are infinitely more useful than an all lace veil for country drives, when the lace veil is hardly adequate in case of wind or dust.

VARIETY IN FOOTWEAR.

Many Styles of Shoes Worn by Smart Women.

The reason for a greater variety in footwear is that the present styles will not conceal the feet. Consequently the shoe manufacturers are putting upon the market their best. Even when the skirts are not short they are so narrow that the feet must of necessity be very much in evidence in walking.

The new decree of short skirts for utility wear, and sometimes in the more elaborate dresses, will be an added incentive to the shoe manufacturers. We are all familiar with the laced tango slipper and the cothurnus, but the seemingly irresistible name of tango has been applied to a most fascinating walking boot for mornings.

About four years ago, I commenced taking "Fruit-a-tives" for a general break-down and they did me a world of good. We bought a good many dollar's worth, but it was money well spent because they did all that you claim for them. Their action is so pleasant, compared with other laxatives, that I found only pleasure, as well as health, in taking them. They seemed to me to be particularly suited to women, on account of their mild and gentle action, and I trust that some other women may start taking "Fruit-a-tives" after reading my letter, and if they do, I am satisfied the results will be the same as in my own case".

ELBA AND ST. HELENA.

Napoleon's Comic Opera Empire and His Grim Island Prison.

An "empire" eighteen miles in length and twelve miles in extreme width, such is the Mediterranean isle of Elba, to which Napoleon was consigned by the victorious allies and where he received the homage of his new subjects. Elba, long a place of pilgrimage for tourists from all nations, lives chiefly in the memories of that ten months of comic opera, when the man who had all but mastered Europe aped his vanished royalty and, like a child with a new toy, issued foolish decrees which began, "Napoleon, emperor, sovereign of Elba, to his people."

Utterly devoid of a sense of humor the emperor must have been to take his new position so seriously. It was a huge joke that the powers played upon the Corsican by permitting him to retain the title of emperor and awarding him a "kingdom" that placed him on the same footing with the sultan of Sulu and the king of the Cannibal Isles.

If Napoleon had remained there he would doubtless have become what his enemies intended he should become—an object of derision, the butt of the world's sneers and jeers. But he did not stay, and the glory of the "hundred days," the brave carnage of Waterloo, the culminating tragedy of St. Helena, restored Napoleon to a place among the world's heroes.

St. Helena was grim and terrible. There humanity pictures Napoleon "with his hands crossed behind him, gazing out upon the sad and solemn sea"—a caged lion, feared by all the world. Elba was trifling, pitiful, petty, insignificant, and there Napoleon was a caged monkey to be laughed at.—New York World.

Describing the Troglydote prison, Miss Braun tells of an Italian lady's experience while visiting the female prisoners.

"They had never seen a European woman before and asked her to take off her hat. No sooner had she done so than in a twinkling all her hairpins were pulled out, to be kept as souvenirs by the women, who looked upon them as most precious mementos."

The friendly Troglydotes made tea for Miss Braun, "shai, as it is called, made with powdered tea and such, very much, sugar, so that it tastes just like a syrup," and they are very excited at the event of her visit.

Caring For the Piano.

One of those popular fellows who in sit down at a piano and play accompaniments to songs, even when the "music" is not forthcoming, happened to be in a little village recently when a concert was almost struck through the pianist disappointing at the last minute. Our friend, says the Glasgow News, came to the rescue and got the company out of its difficulty, inwardly he applied to the instrument adjectives which would shock even George Bernard Shaw. After the performance the caretaker (a "lady") as covering up for the night, and the ayer mentioned to her that the piano was very much in need of attention, she scouted the idea. "Why," said he, "I went over it myself this morning and scrubbed every part of it, keys and all."

Her Candlestine Courtship.

The servant was discussing her late love affair with a mistress, who is humane enough to be interested. "Well," said the mistress, "since we've been going out with him for months, I think it's quite time he took you to see his parents."

"I've been telling him so, ma'am, last Sunday I said to him, 'Herr, I'm not going to be courted in a candlestine way any longer!'"

It was some time, says the Manchester Guardian, before the mistress' zizzled brain understood that "candlene" and "clandestine" were synonymous.

Love of the Forest.

The only way to love the forest is to go in it until you have learned its blessed travel, growth and inhabitants you know the fields. You must be at the gate and find your way slow else you will not hear the great set and see the compelling vision, are trees you never before have seen, flowers and vines the botanists mention and such music as your s cannot bear elsewhere.—Gene attion Porter.

boats—snapshots with your own camera, postcards of sailboats, photographs bought at a seaside shop, etc.

For the botanist collect specimens of the flora of the locality. Press all the flowers and leaves you can find and label them carefully. They will prove an interesting addition to a botanical collection.

For the housewife the little tray illustrated here would make a gift much liked. The flowers and butterflies are a charming suggestion of summer.

An embroidery of this style might be purchased and then arranged in the tray frame.

Pressed wild flowers or mounted seaweeds combined with tiny shells may be attractively arranged for the decoration of these frame trays.

Why She Didn't Enjoy Her Vacation

She started finding fault with the place the moment she arrived and was never satisfied.

She went to a boarding house and refused to be friendly with any one. But she was annoyed when not included in the excursions that the others got up. She forgot that if we want to be on friendly terms with strangers we must be prepared to meet them halfway.

She went to a more expensive place than she really could afford and was annoyed because she could not dress as well or spend as much as the other guests.

She was so anxious to see everything there was to be seen in the neighborhood that she rushed far too much and at the end of her holiday had only the most confused idea of the places she had visited.

She was never willing to do what the others wanted to do and made herself thoroughly disagreeable if she couldn't get her own way.

She was always noticing the little ways in which she thought people neglected her instead of the many in which they helped to make her enjoy herself.

When little things were wrong she looked as glum as if a terrible catastrophe had happened. She had never learned to smile at trivial mishaps.

She blamed her companions and the weather when she found she wasn't enjoying herself, forgetting that to be happy "inside" is the surest way to be independent of both.

She thought too much about the fact that the holidays would soon be over—so much, indeed, that she forgot to enjoy what was still left.

She expected too much. Instead of trying to make other people happy she thought that they ought to be devoting themselves to her.

THE TRAVELER'S VEIL.

Many Styles Shown For the Vacation— ist Who Likes to Be Neat.

Veils are well nigh indispensable to the traveler, and the wise woman has a fresh veil in her dressing bag to supplement the one she is wearing. The new fine veillings might have been specially designed for the traveler, so admirably do they suit her purpose. They keep her neat, preserve the complexion and hair from dust and grime yet do not unduly obstruct the sight. These fine veillings are sometimes woven with a single tiny lace motif

ers. We are all familiar with the laced tango slipper and the cothurnus, but the seemingly irresistible name of tango has been applied to a most fascinating walking boot for mornings.

German Milk Rice.

The Germans eat a good deal of milk rice (milchreis), which is cooked partly in water and finished in milk—if wanted richer, with a little cream—then served with butter and flavorings, the latter of which may be cooked in cinnamon with sugar is the commonest thing to eat with it.

Nearly all German recipes for this dish advise bringing the rice to a boil in cold water with a pinch of soda, since they believe the milk will otherwise be curdled. They pour off the first water as soon as it boils, then cook the rice in an open kettle for a little, in order to get rid of the proper but not agreeable odor which much rice gets in cooking.

Grapes With Grapefruit.

A dainty fruit salad calls for Malaga grapes. Blanch them by throwing them into hot water for a second or so. Then cut them in two and take out the seeds. Peel grapefruit and separate it into sections, removing all the tough ligaments and the seeds. Mix the grapes and the grapefruit, which should both be chilled through. Serve on lettuce leaves with mayonnaise dressing.

HOME CHAT.

Adding a little salt to water for cut flowers keeps them fresh longer.

To drive away crickets on the hearth put ordinary snuff into the chinks of a fireplace.

If a piece of waxed paper is placed under the centerpiece on a polished table it will prevent the linen from adhering to the table in hot weather as well as prevent an overfilled vase or rose bowl from making a mark.

If the gong of a small clock is too loud or too disagreeable in tone it may be softened by placing the clock upon a very thick pad. The pad also gives relief to the nerves when the loud ticking distresses.

Invalid's Plates.

Invalid plates, or baby plates, as they are also called, are a convenience in the household where there is a small child that eats slowly or an invalid whose meals must be carried from the dining room. They make use of the vacuum method of keeping things hot. Each consists of a metal frame about as deep as a shallow soup plate, into which hot water is poured through a small opening with a screw top. In the top of this metal frame is fitted a china plate, on which the food is put.

The hot water under it keeps the plate hot, and presumably the food on it keeps hot too. This would be a delightful gift to an invalid, for its very novelty makes it interesting.

Hemp Hats.

A hat for general wear is made of black hemp braid on a flat brimmed frame, having a round crown, which is covered with a gay Roman silk, with a fan shaped plaiting of the silk at one side. A hat of blue hemp has a crown and frill of blue and white picot ribbon in a floral design.

teroo, the culminating tragedy of St. Helena, restored Napoleon to a place among the world's heroes.

St. Helena was grim and terrible. There humanity pictures Napoleon "with his hands crossed behind him, gazing out upon the sad and solemn sea"—a caged lion, feared by all the world. Elba was trifling, pitiful, petty, insignificant, and there Napoleon was a caged monkey to be laughed at.—New York World.

TIME IN PALESTINE.

It Is So Erratic That Making a Train Is Quite a Feat.

In Jerusalem town time and train time are different, forty minutes different, and both are variable. Train officials say the train leaves for Jaffa at 6:40 o'clock in the morning, but 6:40 o'clock by train time is 7:20 o'clock by town time. One morning when we were starting for Egypt we ordered our carriage for 7 o'clock. Arriving at the station at 7:15 o'clock, we found the train gone and the station empty. At last was routed out an official.

"Where's the train?" we demanded.
"Gone, messieurs."

"Gone? You've changed the hour of the train, then?"

"Non, non, messieurs. The train leaves at the same hour always, but the time has changed. Yesterday 6:40 o'clock train time was 7:20 o'clock town time. Today 6:40 o'clock train time is 7 o'clock town time. No, no"—and he smiled patronizingly—"the train always leaves at the same hour; our trains never change—it is the time that alters itself, not the train, messieurs!"

We sought the telegraph office.

"To the steamer agent to Jaffa," we dictated. "Missed train. Cancel passage on boat for Egypt. Wire date of next sailing for Port Said." This was turned into flowery Turkish and sent. A reply came soon.

"Plenty of time. Your boat will wait till tomorrow afternoon, for the water is so rough she cannot land her passengers and cargo today. Plenty of time if you take the train tomorrow."—Atlantic Monthly.

Impudent Thieves.

The leprosy of Mexico is reported to be one of the smartest and most impudent thieves in the world. Brantz Meyer tells of an English traveler, who, within an hour or two, in the principal streets of Mexico, had first his hat hooked from his head by a line from an upper window, and was then accosted by three lepers who divested him of his coat. The three bade him wait, and within a few minutes one returned and handed him a pawn ticket.

"We wanted $30, not the coat," he explained. "Here is the ticket with which you can redeem it for that sum."—London Mail.

Surprise For Both.

John Burns once paid a visit to a London lunatic asylum. He was taken all over the establishment, and finally arrived at the gardens, where a number of patients were working. Mr. Burns esped among them a man with whom he had some slight acquaintance and was about to speak to him when the lunatic suddenly exclaimed:

"Well, I never! You, too! The very last person I thought to see here."—London Citizen.

RED CROSS SOCIETY

At a meeting held on Saturday afternoon, Sept. 5th, in the Town Hall, the Napanee Branch of the Canadian Red Cross Society was reorganized. Notice of the same was sent to headquarters in Toronto and the following letter has been received.

THE CANADIAN RED CROSS SOCIETY.

77 King St., East,
Toronto, Sept. 8, 1914.

Miss Alma Thompson,

Napanee, Ont.

Dear Miss Thompson:

Replying to yours of the 5th inst., we are glad to learn that you have formed a branch of the Society in Napanee, and will have your warrant of authority sent to you.

Should you receive any funds during the coming week we shall be glad to receive them, as we propose sending the sum of $50,000 to the British Red Cross Society in London, as they are in urgent need of funds owing to the enormous number of men wounded.

Answering your questions as to the necessity of everybody becoming members, we will leave that to your own judgment. You will locally know what best suits your circumstances. Should you desire to make any purchases of material from the money you collect it will be quite satisfactory to have this done, as they might be able to do the work while they could not give any funds.

We are sending you under separate cover a copy of the Charter and pamphlet which will help you at present. A little later on a revised list of requirements will be published in the press.

Regarding your questions as to patterns, I have referred this to Mrs. Plumtree, who will give you the information.

Thanking you, and wishing you success with your branch, I am

Yours very Truly,

NOEL MARSHALL.

The cover cut of Rod and Gun Magazine for September illustrates the fact that the open season for wild ducks in Canada starts with September. The list of contents which is sure to appeal to all sportsmen readers contains among other things the following stories and articles: A Reconnaissance from Coast to Coast; The Wildfowler in Canada from 1906 to 1914 by Bonnycastle Dale; Our friends of the Waterways by H. Mortimer Batten; Duck Shooting by Twilight by R. J. Fraser; After Nova Scotian Woodcock with that Good Old Man; From Sharbot Lake to Montreal by Water; Tolling September Ducks; A cry in the Wilderness; and the first of a series of articles on things to know about a shotgun. At the Belleville fair the exhibit of horses was of good quality and all classes well filled. Mr. J. C. Creighton, Hawley, won second prize on his Clydesdale stallion, and Mr. C. Garrison, Morven, captured first prize in the roadster class with his chestnut hackney.

Clinton Walker, of Sydenham, was severely injured on Wednesday afternoon by falling into a threshing machine, which he was driving. One foot was severed and the other badly mangled. His life was only saved by Alfred Deyo pulling him out of the machine. The injured man is in Kingston General Hospital.

Drs. Ray F. English and Fannie G. English, Osteopathic Physicians, have located in Napanee for the practice of their profession and will open offices about Sept. 1st, at Mrs. Withers' residence on West street. Will be at the Campbell House until that time. Drs. English are graduates of the American school of Osteopathy under the founder of the science, Er. A. T. Still. 38-bp Every public school pupil in Picton and Prince Edward will be presented with free tickets for the first day of the Prince Edward Old Boys' Fair, also with Union Jacks, and will line up in a grand patriotic procession, which will march through Main Street to the grounds, headed by the 48th Highlanders Band, Boy Scouts, Guests and Directors in carriages and the decorated automobiles that will compete for the special prizes offered for same. You will spend a delightful day's outing if you take in the Str. Lamonde's excursion to Picton on the first day of the Fair, Tuesday, Sept. 22nd.

Ladies willing to work on any committee will kindly notify the convenor of that committee.

It has been decided by the society not to ask for fees, but donations of time or money from any one will be most gratefully received.

Next Wednesday, Sept. 16th, has been selected as "Tag Day" for which one thousand tags have already been donated by one member of the society. Another member has offered to defray all expenses in connection with the Travel Talk by Mr. Frank Yeigh on Tuesday evening, Sept. 22nd.

Wonderland has also been placed at the disposal of the Society for a Saturday afternoon in the near future.

The Council Chamber as a work room and depot of supplies will be open every afternoon from two to five, also Saturday morning from ten to twelve. The thanks of the Society are due to the Town Council who have so generously given the use of the Hall and Council Chamber, and to the different ladies and gentlemen who have already done so much towards making the success of the Society assured.

A LECTURE ON THE WAR.

MR. FRANK YEIGH, OF TORONTO, TO SPEAK, TUESDAY EVENING, SEPTEMBER 22ND.

ENTIRE PROCEEDS FOR RED CROSS SOCIETY.

The Red Cross Society begs to announce that Mr. Frank Yeigh, of Toronto, will present his new picture travel talk—"For King Country and Empire," in the Town Hall, Napanee, on Tuesday evening, September 22nd, at 8 o'clock. This lecture will be illustrated by a new series of lantern views which includes pictures of Canadian soldiers at Toronto and Valcartier, Great Britain's army and navy, scenes in the British Isles and Europe, and reminders of Nelson and Trafalgar. Some slides giving actual events of the war will be given.

The Society will be under no expense in connection with this lecture, accordingly, the total gross receipts will be available for the work which is being done. It is hoped that the people of Napanee and district will fill the hall to its capacity. Entrance 25c.

Has It For Less !

During the war in Europe J. R. Spearman, Druggist, of the Napanee Drug Company, will stand between you and high prices. We have declared war on high priced protected Patent Medicines. We can and will sell you all Drug Store Goods during the war 30 per cent. less than any other drug store in the county.

Watch for Our Ultimatum Against High Prices

It will pay you to go out of your way two blocks to read it. And it will save you money if you will only obey that impulse and come to the Napanee Drug Company.
